It was 1987! At a lecture the other day they were playing an old news video of Lt.Col. Oliver North testifying at the Iran-Contra hearings during the Reagan Administration.

There was Ollie in front of God and country getting the third degree, but what he said was stunning!

He was being drilled by a senator; "Did you not recently spend close to $60,000 for a home security system?"

Ollie replied, "Yes, I did, Sir."

The senator continued, trying to get a laugh out of the audience, "Isn't that just a little excessive?"

"No, sir," continued Ollie.

"No? And why not?" the senator asked.

"Because the lives of my family and I were threatened, sir."

"Threatened? By whom?" the senator questioned.

"By a terrorist, sir" Ollie answered.

"Terrorist? What terrorist could possibly scare you that much?"

"His name is Osama bin Laden, sir" Ollie replied.

At this point the senator tried to repeat the name, but couldn't pronounce it, which most people back then probably couldn't. A couple of people laughed at the attempt. Then the senator continued. Why are you so afraid of this man?" the senator asked.

"Because, sir, he is the most evil person alive that I know of", Ollie answered.

"And what do you recommend we do about him?" asked the senator.

"Well, sir, if it was up to me, I would recommend that an assassin team be formed to eliminate him and his men from the face of the earth."

The senator disagreed with this approach, and that was all that was shown of the clip.

By the way, that senator was Al Gore!

Also:

Terrorist pilot Mohammad Atta blew up a bus in Israel in 1986. The Israelis captured, tried and imprisoned him. As part of the Oslo agreement with the Palestinians in 1993, Israel had to agree to release so-called "political prisoners."

However, the Israelis would not release any with blood on their hands, The American President at the time, Bill Clinton, and his Secretary of State, Warren Christopher, "insisted" that all prisoners be released.

Thus Mohammad Atta was freed and eventually thanked the US by flying an airplane into Tower One of the World Trade Center. This was reported by many of the American TV networks at the time that the terrorists were first identified. It was censored in the US from all later reports.

If you agree that the American public should be made aware of this fact, pass this on.

I have been into Shortwave and Police communications since the days of putting crystals into my 8 channel regency scanner from Montgomery Wards.

I am 41, college educated, and technically savy. Today I am going to go and take my license to be a certified Technician no code ham. So far every test I have taken online I have achieved a passing score without doing any studying other that the knowledge I have accumulated over the past 30 years of being a shortwave, military comm, and police comm listener.

I hope that others in the hobby do not have the same attitude that you possess and are favorable to me being new to the hobby (I am a bit shy out the gate but warm up quickly).

The fact that the fcc has made this test so much more attainable is a good thing because it invites those (like myself) who decide to join this hobby as a result of the test being passable with a basic understanding of the radio spectrum and laws of using the spectrum for which you are licensed to use.

More people available to be a part of the hobby is a good thing. So why would you want to try to weed them out?? Almost sounds like you are being a bit of a radio snob.

Just my 2 pennies worth.

Will Tood get off with a warning, or will he be fined $5,000 for every day of illegal operation? The August warnings will be mailed out next week, and then we can look on http://www.fcc.gov and see if Tood made this month's list of losers.

The FCC field strength van was spotted in Springfield, IL this month, so they might have gotten a real good listen to Tood's pirate station.

Possibly, because try as I might, I can't really remember much about that day.... I had pyloric stenosis, if that counts?

> So apparently YOUR answer to this question is that you couldn't send your

Now that's true... I'd require a CW setup of some kind in order to send my name; or anything else for that matter.
Or as previously pointed out, hack up a headphone jack and tippy tap the wires together. Either way, I don't see my life depending on it at any time, so I'll just let my CW skills continue to rust.
However; your argument does make me wonder how non-hams even have a chance at life in this world... ??

OK.... so by your own words, CW still didn't save a life... CW mixed with bad Spanish passed a message. So now we'll have to add a Spanish test.
Thanks a lot.

As for the language thing.... I can copy voice language and hand it off to another native just as easy and they'll figure it out too.

No CW necessary.

BTW, I noticed you conveniently left out the specific year in which said burning boat was offshore with an obsolete CW outfit, and how your CW expertise put out a fire.... but I'm guessing we're talking many a year ago, so again, a moot point.
Actually,
The boat thing in general is really killing me... If these numb-nuts are offshore and not on the correct USCG freqs and/or unaware of how to properly tune their radios in an emergency, then it isn't CW saving lives, it's the grace of God that somebody happened to be on their freq at that time. But again, what boats are out there with a CW rig???? That's crazy, bubba. :-)

Not an exact date, though it's probably in the archives of the Canadian Coast Guard, my employer at the time. Hey, I worked at Halifax Coast Guard radio from 1977 until 1995, 18 years at the one station. We handled a number of SOS calls on CW and were able to save lives some of the time (not always. alas). But with trained operators on both ends of the signal path, CW was pretty much always an easier go than SSB. And SITOR was pretty much a joke. Half the ships couldn't get it going.

INMARSAT is what put CW out of business in the marine industry. And a nasty solar flare or two could put INMARSAT out of business. You pays your money and you takes your chances. I'm not sure that a ship equipped with a complex satellite radio with a lot of moving parts and a technician is all that much better off than a ship was when they were equipped with an MF-HF CW and SSB radio station and a radio operator who was also a trained technician. All is well until something breaks and the nearest part is 500 miles away over water.

CW was still in use for a some ship-to-shore work when I retired in 1995.

When I went to the high arctic in 1964 it was our main means of communication with the south. We eventually converted that to RTTY and SSB, but neither was really as effective as the CW that preceded.

Now, today, we have such things a PSK31 to do much of the grunt work. That will work as well as CW in most cases, I find.

My point is, my bad Spanish might not have recognized the word "fuego" if it was spoken fast among a lot of other words. But on CW it came across loud and clear.

Except you'll be a lot slower because you'll need phonetic spellings for everything. Believe me, I know. I've done this. For a living for many years.

Not that long ago, really. Early 1990's if I remember.

This was on 500khz (and 484). CW was the mode of operation on those frequencies until well into the 90's. Cheap SSB radios were plentiful. So were some SITOR lashups. But what finally killed it was INMARSAT.

So now, instead of getting nailed by solar flares on HF, you get nailed by them on INMARSAT and have to wait 6 to 9 months for a new launch. Meanwhile you're limping along on SSB using a phonetic alphabet to send traffic at a SLOWER rate.

The FCC today uses modified Ford Crown Victoria's with Police Interceptor packages for In-Field study and Investigations. (Most are retired PD cars bought at auction and refurbished) They haven't used "detector vans" since the early 80's.

Easy to spot also. They usually have the "cop spotlite" still installed on the driver's side and blue-on-white US Govt GSA plates. There are usually NO extternal antennas as roof and hood / trunk lids have been replaced with composite polymer materials surfaces with RDF antennas hidden therein.

Trust me. I KNOW WHAT I SPEAK. I used to work for the Corp that re-furbished these cars for the GSA. Bottom line, if it's a Crown Vic or an Impala or a older Caprice, it's usually Law Enforcement.

I think you missed the point. Even if you didn't know "ola" from "adios", you can copy Spanish in CW and hand it to the recipient, who can read it. Try that with a mic.

Really? You can write a spoken language you don't understand well enough to be read by someone who understands it? Maybe. Maybe not.
In CW, you can.

It sounds like you want to be a ham so you will be welcome.

The point that some people are trying to make is that attracting people who do not want to be hams is rather pointless. They'll be talked into getting a license by some overzealous person telling them how easy it is and then will end up not participating because they don't have an interest in it.

Don't forget thought that solar flares and especially the aurora they create induce a phase shift in signals and that wipes out PSK31.

I do that firaly well as long as it is a a langauge fro gruop I know I can take down serbian in crylllic even though I don't what they are saying it is simply a skill For that matter I hear and resend Morse as long as I don't try to decipher it

YOU can and you then claim that you have that skill it is valid your values in the ARS refuse to accept that notion different strokes for different folks

If instead of CW testng we had a choice a various tests to take that would stand muster the current value Morse well outside of it value withut even realy testing its abilty to do a QSO were the test based sending and receiveing where the receiveing could send bak pse senf all after ... and before what then take a test to show that he was able to comincate the test would have more vailiity but it doesn't the CW tests do noy even show that the testee can use CW over the air

then you are worng

It far from pointless although it is less valueble than atracting and Most of the time it's best to use the standard phonetics: alpha, bravo, charlie, delta, echo, etc....

But in some situations, using an alternate phonetic set will make your message much more clear & accurate, so it's better to use the alternate phonetics when clearity and accuracy is paramount.

For example, using 'Anal Boy Ate Multiple Queers' for AB8MQ, is much more clear and accurate.

People make fun of Scouts. Democrats at the National Convention Boo'd the Boy Scouts when they posted the flag and said the Pledge of Allegiance. Some people even make unfounded accusations of pedophilia when they learn that someone is a Scout leader.

Scouts learn life saving. Some scouts even learn Morse Code. It's all good.

All of those "layers" hams are examples to the general public, good or bad or indifferent. So?

"Self-esteem" is a nice-nice word for EGO tied in with self-perception. Trying to represent themselves as "expert" radio persons in this new millennium is a rather stupid idea of those devout morsepersons when they want to force the FCC to keep the code test.

Those who LIKE morse code should, and can, go on using it. That is in no sense any validity for making it an amateur radio test requirement for a license.

you dared to repeat it. the ARRL had some reason for saying maybe it was just said for the comsumtion of the DHS but no ham was supposed to believe maybe he heard some secret cw on a sub channel subchannel CW that is the way to deal wity TVI have the staion enocde a CW signal on a sucb channel and since CW always gets through the TV signal would get there along with it. Igamine the increased range and advertising revenue the station would make this way

I rather thought it was him. However, he's never won anything -- he's been nominated on numerous occasions, though, I believe, generally for the crappier awards. It's nearly time that changed...You, OTOH, don't have to worry. The GK is all yours, at this point.

Okay, I suppose that is a nice story. If one accepts the

Your question is unconnected to your first sentence.

How does one "use morse code" to save a drowning child? Why would they do that if they were in close proximity?

Please tell us why it is SO important to be "correct" on details of the Titanic disaster that happened 94
years ago?

I asked another in here who-what-why-where-when of amateur radio saving any lives via morse code. That hasn't been answered yet. Maybe you can supply the details?

Irrelevant to Robesin, Brian. Remember, ANYTHING against what Robesin said means the sayer "hates ham radio."

He has long-since lost valid or logical understanding of what is right and what is wrong.

Brian, remember that in Robesin's world he can do NO WRONG.
Anyone against his is an automatic hater of anything Robesin belongs to, works in, or has as a hobby.

Brian, you quoted someone (of higher authority) saying things against Robesin's statements. In his world that means "YOU hate ham radio." [there's NO connection that any sane person could come up with]

Okay, so Robesin's world is twisted, incongruous, insane. But, that's what he states over and over and over and over again in here.

It's important to hear ALL the news. robesin wants only part of the news.

Spanish words are easy to write even if one doesn't understand them. In general, unlike English, there is usually only one possible way to pronounce and to spell a Spanish word. You hear "a-di-os". You write a-d-i-o-s. You don't need to know what it means.

Lessee. He's got a Marine uniform (he says). A Tennessee State Guard uniform (whatever that is), an ill-fitting Air Force CAP flight suit uniform, and a male nurses uniform. And he has lots of military medals that he never earned (according to him).

You know, whenever I saw folks in the CAP uniform at any Air Force Base, including Maxwell, they work the 4b or Class A. Never ever saw a CAP in a flight suit before robesin's well advertised home page.

Cecil can't. Cecil tried to appease the morse jihadists a while back by joining in their rrap cw net. In the end, they still can't stand his views on morse testing.

Unfortunately it was Mark Morgan's personnel trolls from rec.radio.policy
When Mark started posting to our group rec.radio.cb, his first post was about putting beer in his rectum (just a bit off topic IMHO). He cross posted to policy which brought his entourage of trolls with him. One of them decided to x-post to AUK and ta-daaaa, here you are. I hate that our group has to suffer from Mark and his trollers, but what's done is done so I'm in for the ride I guess. Where do I cast my votes and or nominate candidates, I might as well adapt to the environment, eh?

My dad owned a tropical fish store for about 25 years or so. I worked in it off and on from the age of 9 until I moved away. I had access to any fresh water fish I wanted, he even paid me to breed certain types.

Oh, quite -- I like your attitude. For tips on how to identify k00ks, go to the link, and check out answers 6, 7, and 21-25. This is from the FAQ:

http://www.netcabal.com/auk/faq.html

8. How do I present a Kook on this group?

The preferred technique is to get the suspected Kook to start posting to AUK so that we can all see him/her/it in all their first-hand Glory. You can do this by posting followups to the suspect's weirder messages, with your followups nonchalantly crossposted to AUK. If the suspect responds to your messages without editing the Newsgroups line, you've achieved your goal.

Another acceptable method is to repost, complete and unedited, one or two of the suspected Kook's recent rants. If you do this, please provide a brief intro in the header describing what the hell you're doing, such as indicating who this person is, what group you found the message on, or why you think the rest of us should give a rat's @$$ about it.

You should be aware that if you try this with some perfectly reasonable posting, you may be flamed to net.hell and back and probably suspected of being a net.loon yourself. It is also considered extremely lame to nominate someone as a Kook simply because you have lost, or at least failed to win, a debate with them; persistently doing so is likely to get you nominated for Kook Awards. That someone fails to perceive the self-evident, unassailable wisdom of your viewpoint does not, in and of itself, constitute Kookery.

==========

Remember, logic is a kookologist's first tool, then flaming and trolling, and always humorously, if possible (dealing with Outer Filth is not usually very funny, as a rule, for example).

You don't have to worry about bandwidth, for one thing. OTOH, at least one kookologist does have reason to worry, but obviously doesn't actually bother. So why net.KKKop? Usenet isn't "nice", outside of the moderated groups. It's rough-and-tumble, mean, nasty, brutal, flaming-hot, and not for sissies ("sissies" being anyone who thinks we should all be "nicer" to one another). Unless you have a genuine mental disorder that makes you potentially dangerous to yourself, there is absolutely no reason we shouldn't have at you with full-blown mockery. Net.KKKopping is contemptible, almost as low as Outer Filth.

Markie, Just ignore them.

They only tease you because of the stupid things you say when you follow up. Just ignore them and they'll give up.

Stop giving them reasons to tease you. It only makes you look more stupid.

He does have a mental disorder (dyslexia he claims), but he is of no harm to himself. He does however threaten others with bodily harm and even made a few death threats. He has even "challenged me to a duel". Idiocy is not a mental disorder that I am aware of.

Ever try taking dictation at 100wpm spoken speed in a foreign language? I have. Even in one I understand, it's difficult. In one
I don't understand it's impossible. Maybe you're better than I am.

When it's spoken very quickly and in a panic, it's more like "adhyose". Understandable, if weird looking, to a Spaniard. Try some other languages, though - those you've never heard spoken before. See how well you do. Then see how well you do in CW ... oh, you already know that, don't you? -.-. is the same, whether it's hard, soft or unpronounced. Whether you put a cedilla on it or not, a Spaniard will understand it. So will a Turk, even though it sounds more like - -.-.
But would you write "Con" for something that sounds like Tchonn?

Markie, Just ignore them.

They only tease you because of the stupid things you say when you follow up. Just ignore them and they'll give up.

Stop giving them reasons to tease you. It only makes you look more stupid.

I can certainly write down Spanish spoken at my CW speed of 13 wpm which is the whole point. If one speaks faster, I may not be able to copy it. If one sends CW to me faster than 13 wpm, for sure I cannot copy it even in English.

You chose the same day at a time that you knew I was at work and would not receive your post until it was too late to accommodate you. Your choice of the time and place was bogus and you know it. You have made death threats towards me, it's in the Google archives, and can be backed up by the readers of this NG. You troll the group pretending to defend your homosexuality, yet I only asked you to not post your sexual preference on a radio NG as I could care less who you sleep with. Your first post to this group was about your beer enemas. You claim to be a Kentucky Colonel, yet have never explained any details of how you supposedly achieved this.
You are nothing but a troll that butchers the English language and desperately seeks negative attention from anywhere you can get it. You are an admitted liar and teach your children that it's ok to lie also. YOU Mark Morgan, have no life outside of Usenet. You should be nominated for coward of the month and the golden killfile. Hopefully AUK will recognize your kOOk potential and reward you with distinction. I know that any nomination you get, I will be voting for you.

Why bother to keep on going, freind? You cannot get through life on your own strength. You will keep failing and you will go deeper and deeper into despair. Kill yourself.

Your name means seedy pillow biter; small dick, fat arse; partial to animalistic nad chewing from impertinent San Francisco sixty-niner, but if it were up to me I'd say you're a(n) wizened, languid death-token.

Damn, you guys are childish!

How's this for your set-to hissy fits?

I don't like Liberals! I don't like butt -pluggers, I don't like Wetbacks, I don't like rap music, I don't like seeing 14 year old white girls pushing baby buggies with half-breed black babies around the local mall, and I don't like Illegals getting Driver's Licenses.

I also do not like seeing theatre marquees with Spanish over riding the English version. I live in the United States, I do not live in Mexico City.
And when I use an automated check out lane? I speak English, thank you just the same, Wal-Mart!

Impossible according to the rabid morsemen. "ALL" infrastructure

MYTHOLOGY cannot be argued logically. It is part of the lore, the mystique promulgated by groups who think they are far more than they really are.

The ARRL resells a few fictional novels by a single author (a gal) whose subject is mainly "saving the day" with amateur radio, several of which are supposed to feature the "life-saving abilities" of morsemanship. I've never read any, just read the ad copy for them on the ARRL website. In the writing trade those are known as "teen-age novels" and are for the under-adult age group.

Some folks think those works of fiction are "real" and like to cite them to those of us who know better. That and all the other tales of the Olde Dayes when Kode was King and all the "best" radio men pounded brass. That was long, long ago when radio was new, something to communicate with that did not exist before it came along.

>> Maybe you can supply the details?
>Cecil can't. Cecil tried to appease the morse jihadists a while back

The RRAP morse jahidists MUST have THEIR way. They NEED the elitist identification to prove they are "somebodies" who are "better" than ordinary mortals through morsemanship.
They get very tiresome rather quickly.

I'm calling them the new "Al-Code-ah" since they might be organized and beginning to terrorize amateurs with their demands of code-testing-forever in the USA.

I've nothing against those who LIKE to use morse code and find pleasure in that mode. I am totally against those who DEMAND that ALL MUST test for morsemanship (at any speed) just to get an amateur radio license. They are fixated on their youth and times past, trying to delude themselves that time has marched on and all of electronics technology has changed many times over since They began.

It's quite remarkable viewing some of those olde-tymers trying to tout their "I am the greatest" bragging, especially so since I began in radio communications back before some of them had yet to be born or at least before they became teenagers! These olde-tymers blabber on about the efficacy of morsemanship long, long after ALL the other radio services stopped using morse. For them time stood still...or they refused to acknowledge the inexorable passage of time.

The "Al-Code-Ah" continue in their Jihad...

several civilians on USAF bases, employed by the USAF, wearing flight suits and clearly identified as to being civilian.

Oh, oh...in the PC (Political Correctness) of morsedom,
the code test cannot possibly ever be a "barrier."

ALL "good hams" should WORK for their AMATEUR licenses!

Those that won't are worse than river-bottom slime...:-)

Trying to speak logically, the FCC grants amateur licenses
in the USA and even they proposed (via an NPRM) to eliminate the amateur radio morse code test for a license. FCC is on record of a couple decades ago that this singular manual skill test does not tell them if a license applicant is worthy of a federal license.

Tsk, all that work he does in trying to bluff us. All he had to do was present SOME sort of document proof or even a personal snapshot taken while in that "hostile-action-filled" 18 year
"career" in the USMC. He hasn't done so after many years.

If he can't present a single item of 18 years of his life, it is hard for the rest of us to believe anything he said.

Strange that he doesn't "sign" his posts with "Steve and the Boys" any longer. :-)

Robeson feels "safe" when isolated in time and distance over the Internet. He can cuss, swear, and make like some super-macho dude in relative safety. Makes him a Big Man in his own eyes. Too bad everyone else doesn't see it that way.

It's probably a great deal deeper than that.

Typically in such cases Robeson won't seek professional help in overcoming his frustrations. Common syndrome of such behavior and described in elementary Psychology courses of 40 years ago.

He lacks the sppearance of sanity but, as I remarked, his actions are those of one who is greatly frustrated on a deeper level, begun there many years ago.

It may be theraputic to him to sit there, safely isolated from in-person encounters, and cuss out, insult others. If so, he has already been "in therapy" for years and years in here...

>> Okay, so Robesin's world is twisted, incongruous, insane. But,

Robeson is just NOT living up to the (self-righteous) "ideals" of a top-rank radio amateur by his actions in here. Doesn't bother me, not being licensed in amateur radio (I'm licensed in Commercial radio), but it's a shame that he has to act that way. It tarnishes the public image of all others who engage in a fine avocational activity.

As I've already said, he probably doesn't qualify as clinically nuts, but he can go over the edge any time. It is morbidly fascinating to watch his behavior change from the original gung-ho boasting and bragging to the insulting boor he has become.

Ok.... and lose 99% of the available operators when another Katrina month after the storm. My town took the direct hit from Katrina..... even though we are 60 miles north of the gulf, I still had 110mph sustained winds

I admit that but I know how to say "despacio" until they hardly as medial devices are increasing ly conected to the bot and hackers can in fact affect lethal harm to their victums indeed if someone were hack enough into my home this winter and altered the programing of medical device oe might have killed my home man

Let's keep the CB'ers on CB.

1: No more automatic renewals. Individuals must retest and pass all elements required for their license class.

2: The passing score for written exams needs to be raised to 85%.

3: Code elements should be 13 wpm for General, and 20 wpm for Extra.

4: Make the no-code license one year non-renewable.

Tnx, 73

In all my visits to USAF bases I've never seen any CAP personnel there, let alone some in a poopy suit. I've seen several civilians on USAF bases, employed by the USAF, wearing flight suits and clearly identified as to being civilian.

Oh, oh...in the PC (Political Correctness) of morsedom,
the code test cannot possibly ever be a "barrier."

ALL "good hams" should WORK for their AMATEUR licenses!

Those that won't are worse than river-bottom slime...:-)

Trying to speak logically, the FCC grants amateur licenses
in the USA and even they proposed (via an NPRM) to eliminate the amateur radio morse code test for a license. FCC is on record of a couple decades ago that this singular manual
skill test does not tell them if a license applicant is worthy of a federal license.

That's also a symptom of anoxia...lack of oxygen used up in his bragging of what he did that never was... :-)

Tsk, all that work he does in trying to bluff us. All he had to do was present SOME sort of document proof or even a personal
snapshot taken while in that "hostile-action-filled" 18 year
"career" in the USMC. He hasn't done so after many years.

If he can't present a single item of 18 years of his life, it is hard for the rest of us to believe anything he said.

Looks like the Dell and Apple laptop battery fiasco just might BANKRUPT Sony Corporation, so if your looking for a Sony Shortwave, Scanner or other radio product, you may want to buy it sooner than later....

As I said in another post, try that in Turkish. Or Latvian. Or any other language you don't know a single word of.

But in CW, it doesn't matter - you write the letters as they come, whether you know what they mean or not. In the Navy, we had to read what we had copied to know what it said - the CW came in your ear and went out your fingers, you didn't pay attention to it. English? Who knew, until you read it?

I knew a SSgt that was also a Major. When he had on his Major Uniform, he strutted around escorting the JrCAPs to the chow hall to show them how it's really done.

Seven hostile actions, I'm told. I can't imagine being short-sheeted 7

I've read several of them to my son when he was younger. The first books were written by a guy. He's passed on, and now in the same style, they are written by a gal.

I immensely enjoyed the works of fiction served up by W0EX (SK), and K3LT, where the story was so contrived that ONLY cw could save the day.

While an outsider, I would like to second the motion if nobody else will.

In the past, the company did very well, even though the products and service were costly they were of the highest quality. Once the founder, Mr. Morita, passed away, the company became very poorly managed -left to bean counters and lawyers who had no concept of the value of a tradition of quality products or service. They made sweeping changes they would not have dared to make while Morita-San was alive. Parts in machines that had previously been cast or machined became stamped. Machined brass or aluminum bosses holding mechanism guides and supports to a mechanism baseplate became molded-in nylon strips and thin sheets with little threaded and even -perish the though- press-fit bosses on them. Yes, press-fit metal into nylon. Service quality also became secondary to profit. That is, the service organization was no longer permitted to break even in order to provide high value service, and the profit-center model they implemented caused the quality of service to drop severely, even as they raised the hourly rate to $150 (broadcast) and cheaply hired inexperienced technicians right out of a 2-year course DeVry to work on broadcast video gear. People I would not let loose on a CD palyer. Their excuse was "hire from a diverse pool" but in reality that was not done. We called them 20-20's because they were 20 years old and made $20K/Yr

-and they really had no concept of the fundamental theory behind most of the equipment they worked on. I mean these guys could not tell you the difference between a balanced and unbalanced signal, or why it was important. Service center managers expected us 'old' guys to train them, but the immaturity, laziness, and impatience of such folk won out as time and time again the rework would come back. Customers would say that Sony service was becoming no better than Panasonic's, a huge insult previously, but it became close to the truth. The profit sharing plan dried up as the hungry new 'hollywood' branch of the company, a gigantic business error, sucked up money faster than a new york coke prostitue. They were paying Michael Jackson's salary for a while too. It was a mess, and the spiral to destruction was not slow, and is probably now irreversible. I left Sony when they decided to consolidate alll service to one location and they offered me the "opportunity" to move to Norcross GA (Atlanta) and work in a 24-hour sweatshop, er.. hot-seat repair center. In the current center, I was in charge of a 12x30 area with three 7' racks, a desk, computer, phone, and workbench, with maybe $250K worh of test gear, and that is where I did my repairs. I worked on high end NTSC and HDTV digital broadcast and production products. Nothing I worked on cost less than $5000 and most of it was in the 20K range. That was the level of responsibility. The new place would have me coming in to a seat still warm from someone's butt every morning, sharing a drawer full of possibly nasty hand tools and maybe some potato chip crumbs, in a short workbench with no desk, no racks and only a couple pieces of test gear, working on cheap VHS or 8mm video tape recorders with two other people, and no computer or phone, all assholes and elbows, butts to nuts with 300 other people in the huge room, the hillbilly boss staring down from his loft on the second floor, deciding which slave to beat. (we sent spies in ahead to check on this) That is what they did to the service department and it is why Sony service sucks now and why the products are not what they were. I could go on, but there's no point. I think that was the best thing that Sony ever did for us experienced people, shutting down the regional service centers. Really gave our carreers a boost when we changed Jobs. Sony on your resume used to mean something then. I wonder if it does now?

We don't really care at RAR+P, but I wondered when rec.radio.cb or alt.usenet.kooks was going to break in with the prerequisite story that Lloyd the child molester uses only Sony Betamax...

Please, I have a 1942 Zenith to fix. You shouldn't feed on false hope, it's silly.

The rabid morsemen are still in the 1950s when there was NO
"911" and certainly not cellular telephony. Even so, an ordinary telephone could had called for help in the 1950s.

In the communications industry of today, the emphasis is on WiFi and - still - cell phone technology. It's BIG Business shown rather dramatically on rooftops and towers
all over the USA.

A couple years ago the US Census Bureau stated that one in three Americans had a cell phone subscription. That's like nearly 100 million of us...

OK, that's cool. As long as the readers can understand that a novel is a work of fiction, fine. There are still a few chowderheads who think the film "Independence Day" was a documentary! :-)

>I immensely enjoyed the works of fiction served up by W0EX (SK), and

"Contrived?!?" :-) Whole-cloth BS I'd put it.

So am I. It's nine months since the official close of Comments on the NPRM.

Nine months? Gestation almost complete? "Birth" of an R&O soon? :-)

I'll just put it down to the FCC very busy with lots and lots of other things to attend to in DC. Amateur radio is small stuff in the big scheme of things in all of radio. FCC prolly has only one staffer working on the old NPRM and that one may be time-sharing other work in progress.

Any rational, sane person can't believe his claims. Hopefully, that is most of us reading some of the garbage going on in here now.

I found it uproarious that Robeson tried to cover up his NOT naming a single military radio that was operational during his alleged 18-year "USMC career," claiming "all the information is classified!" :-)

Absolute bullshit. The names, ID, functions have all been in public view...the 'Public' being the makers or those wanting to get in on an RFQ (Request for Quote) being advertised by the DoD. Even though I never operated (as a civilian) anything more than an old ARC-27 or PRC-119 SINCGARS, all the military radios operational between the times of those two are easily recognizeable to me (well, the VRCs have lots of differences between families but the same case and general form). The operating manuals are NOT classified, just in limited distribution. LOGSA the Logistics Supply Agency is busy making CDs of all the printed manuals for darn near ALL military equipment; it's a piece of cake to pop one of those CDs in an ever-present military PC and read them. LOGSA has a website and even civilians can download some of the older equipment's manuals. LOGSA has some internal priority on what can be downloaded (depending on the cookie generated by a non-military PC). That was a tip I got from rec.radio.amateur.boatanchors and rec.radio.amateur.homebrew. The nomenclatures and quick-look facts are on a couple websites in a long, long, long list. Even BAMA has some manuals for free download plus big link lists for other sites that have them.

Robesin DID list some (questionable) nomenclatures for MARS equipment once but NOTHING else. That kind of info can be had from other hams' personal websites. MARS doesn't normally talk about regular military tactical radio gear. MARS doesn't normally use such. :-)

You're out of touch, old timer. Brits commonly use the term "CV" instead of "resume". Many American companies have picked up on the use of the term "CV". It is not just used in academia:

Definitions of curriculum vitae on the Web:

* (abbreviated cv): Latin expression meaning "course of life" in other words, a resume.

Are you trying to look recently experienced when you are not?

Robeson demnds I rpoduce photos so he can use them in efforts to ahrrassme
I also remind the NG's that Robeson is a proven liar

it also buries the AUK's efforts to disrupt the NG's one already wavering

it gives Robeson something he likes to avoid to deal with:the truth

Cecil, my old friend. I'm disappointed that you've been drawn back into this cesspool.

From the glory days when you were the leading poster, and when substantive issues were discussed in deliberate if sometimes heated sessions, rrap has declined into a small, well-trained group of village idiots who have no function other than flinging excretory matter like mangy monkeys in a third rate carnival sideshow.

A shame, but it has to be said.

I found it very amusing that this all went down with Sony on the same day that the IAU downsized the Solar System from 9 to 8 Planets.

: (I feel sorry for Pluto. : (

"RESOLUTION 5A"

The IAU therefore resolves that planets and other bodies in our Solar System be defined into three distinct categories in the following way:

(1) A planet is a celestial body that (a) is in orbit around the Sun, (b) has sufficient mass for its self-gravity to overcome rigid body forces so that it assumes a hydrostatic equilibrium (nearly round) shape, and (c) has cleared the neighbourhood around its orbit.

(2) A dwarf planet is a celestial body that (a) is in orbit around the Sun, (b) has sufficient mass for its self-gravity to overcome rigid body forces so that it assumes a hydrostatic equilibrium (nearly round) shape, (c) has not cleared the neighbourhood around its orbit, and (d) is not a satellite.

At the very least, you need a great deal more training. That's if I can work up the interest to bother with you for so long. Wiseman's much more fun to kick around. Man, did I really just say that? Yeesh. There are no standards anymore.

You are a liar, plain and simple.

You are the expert at being an imbecile, too, Markie.

"Adknowledged." BWHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHA! Yes, advertizing is something you know about if you've been around, Markie. BWHAHAHAHAHAHAHA! It's Oh, well, at least you're learning _something_! Look at Mark, he can't even figure out that he won't get slapped if he just refrains from using "that" word. Now you just have to learn not to talk back to your betters, and all will be well.

Your words, not David's. You implied Spanish couldn't be copied with a mic by a non-Spanish speaking person.
I showed that it can be done.

another of the kooks

you think that you and the Demon can type the word bitchslap means people are afraid of you inddeed trans YOU and demon haven't learned you can't slap me at all you insist usenet isn't real, slaping would be, and if you want to try slaping you will have to stay standing long enough to do it why not?

or how much you want to bet Doc and how do I get paid these usenet kooks are like to cowardly to even post their own name let alone try to hit someone you will do try under conidctions where you get conduct an ambush.

Reasons for what?
I have NO interest in your sex life.
A search of Google bears out my claim that you rarely post on topic.

You are not allowed to call others kooks, as you are one.
I control nothing but my own actions, if I am controlling you it is of your own volition.
I have not bashed you for being gay, you hide behind that hoping for a prince on a white horse to rescue you. I have however asked you many times to keep your sex life out of RRCB regardless if you are hetro or homo, I just don't care.

True, I've never had much success during 2 metere aurora openings with anything BUT CW. It ain't CW by the time it gets to the other end, but it's still readable there.

You're preaching to the choir, Dave. I've had to handle foreign language traffic phonetically by voice and by CW - and I much prefer CW for that kind of work, even though I prefer voice for most rag-chewing. As you say, needing it spelled out is quite slow.

All slapping is virtual, of course. Your inability to understand that this is a virtual medium, thus all action in it is also virtual, is an additional sign of your kookiness. Anyway, at least I have you following one order. Do it again.

Until you understand why this keeps happening, it will keep happening. You are a lame, idiotic (regardless of your IQ) net.KKKop, just like Scoville (but without his monumentally frothing scale), and that means you are a k00k. I have yet to come close to violating my ISP's TOS, meaning that all you can do is (kookily) whine about me x-poasting. You should try reading the AUK FAQ sometime -- it's most enlightening. An unwillingness to read it is another k00ksign.

Hail Eris!
Demon Prince of Absurdity
Looney Maroon nominee for August 2006 Johnny D Wentzky foamed:
"You never asked someone who goes into areas of the internet that are only for adults who has an underage id somehow or another if they are a cop posing as an underage person online?
I guess lots of people just don't watch dateline or read stories much. Why don;t you go to pervertedjustice,com and see what they do. They are awash in their self-proclaimed glory after they lied to membners of the public.
They are awash in their self-proclaimed glory after they posed as an underage person and agreed to do all sorts of sex acts wioth adult males, and they are adults posing as teenager themselves. They make themsleves into liars by falsely impersonating underage persons and by not fuilfilling the words they tell the victims online in their chats. Why don't you read it where they tell these victims of their deceit about how they have been with grown men and such? Why don't you read it where they say, "That would be cool." after someone makes an advance towards an adult who is posing as a teenager? And, where they agree to meet the person, etc.
Lost control, didn't you?
Is that why you feel as if you need to lie so much now? I see where lots of these false impersonation games are not sticking. They feel as if they can lie and then order the victims to get counseling in the gayblade, governmental, pro-choice tax leech counseling centers. They are doing nothing more than usury and fraud in many cases." -- Wentzky almost comes out of the closet as a pedo/ephebophile in MID:

I guess lots of people just don't watch dateline or read stories much.
Why don;t you go to pervertedjustice,com and see what they do. They are awash in their self-proclaimed glory after they lied to membners of the public.
They are awash in their self-proclaimed glory after they posed as an underage person and agreed to do all sorts of sex acts wioth adult males, and they are adults posing as teenager themselves. They make themsleves into liars by falsely impersonating underage persons and by not fuilfilling the words they tell the victims online in their chats.
Why don't you read it where they tell these victims of their deceit about how they have been with grown men and such? Why don't you read it where they say, "That would be cool." after someone makes an advance towards an adult who is posing as a teenager? And, where they agree to meet the person, etc.
Lost control, didn't you?
Is that why you feel as if you need to lie so much now? I see where lots of these false impersonation games are not sticking. They feel as if they can lie and then order the victims to get counseling in the

I'll try to explain one more time. These are words on a screen. Everything you read here is just words on a screen. Therefore, by keyboarding
"<BITCHSLAP>", I am symbolically, /virtually/ slapping you, not literally and physically. There is no way for me to literally and physically slap you, since that would necessitate me going "real-life" on you, which would be completely out of line. Words on a screen are not the same thing as words face-to-face, never mind physical actions. The virtual slapping-around you're getting from me is merely disrespectful of you, not actual violence.

Oh, and don't say "kook", k00k. Or "k00k".

The Indians learned to cut the telegraph wires early on. Saw that on F-Troop. So they had to develop wireless about 30 years later to stop that stuff from happening.

Sounds like government. They rarely hire enough people or the right people to get a really good end result.

my concerns run along the line of being in the news with him, although since he thought chasell was only 20 milaes from Marquuaete I may be safe enoughh and far enough

I have nightmares sometime about tryong to explain why Robeson has come

I attended 3 weeks of CWPC training at Maxwell AFB in Montgomery, Alabama. It hosts CAP HQ. Didn't see any CAP uniforms there, either.

Odd, though. The new owner of robesin's old vanity callsign, K4CAP, resides in Montgomery, Alabama.

If he was involved in MARS, it was probably just to eavesdrop on morale calls from a lonely GI to his wife or girlfriend back home.

No, we want your sorry ass to stay on CB. Better ham radio exams will help. Let's keep the CB'ers on CB.

1: No more automatic renewals. Individuals must retest and pass all elements required for their license class.

2: The passing score for written exams needs to be raised to 85%.

3: Code elements should be 13 wpm for General, and 20 wpm for Extra.

That's nice. This is America.

I'm not a big fan of it, Mark, but if its between consenting adults I can't see persecuting someone for it. And if "God hates queers" as robesin believes, then God will handle it. Robesin apparently thinks he's the right arm of the lord, but fails to recognize that he has plenty to worry about himself when he gets to the gates.

Welp, you reported him, and he has no legitimate reason to be found in such a remote location, even if he does buy a fishing license for a "cover story." Stalking should be easy to prove.

indeed I will answer to God as needednot to Robeson "vengeance is mine sayeth the Lord I will repay: Roman 9 I believe and unlike my more liberal Brethern I think it is perfectly ok to disprove or even dislike me for that simple fact, a multi year vendatta of threat and false report to the cops is another matter indeed if Robeson, et al, would simply keep it to some like God will get you for it occasionaly I would have no problem with that.

OTOH saying nothing in the face of such persecution is IMO part of what led the death of 6 million jews, and with the esitimates of ten percent or more of Americans being BGLT that is roughly 23 million dead if we go down that road

yes he did

OTOH He did admit to being a prima Donna and to having a lot of faults, for that I forgive him a lot and truely think well of him although thankfully I did not serve under him

I hereby propose the following:

we work together to rid the radio groups of the kooks. they're nothing, and we can run them like the sissies they are. they just didn't know how tough us radio guys are.

i will then team with you aganist the gay/bi bashers.

Also add groups of your choice.

kooks should be giving time to surrender.

I have a better idea.

Lets require all Ham radio operators take an I.Q. test. Only upon passing the test would an operator be allowed Amateur privileges. A score of 130 would be required. This would eliminate 98% of hams and also eliminate overcrowding of the band.

The 98% of Amateurs who flunk would automatically be termed CBers. This shouldn't be a problem because 98% of Amateurs are nothing but self glorified CBers anyway. They just would never admit it.

Problem solved.

The names are too similar. It's easy for the public to confuse the names, and so your choice will be taken before a judge. You do have enough money to afford $125 per hour for a copyright and trade mark lawyer, don't you? It shouldn't require more than 100 or 200 hours of billed time for the law firm to handle your case up through the first hearing. That's somewhere between $12,000 and $25,000 up-front money to defend yourself.

You probably have that as pocket change in your basement floor safe (next to the Tonka Toys).

It's as real as I mean it, and as real as you choose to take it. Since you clearly consider your rec.radio.* froups to be "real", and keep trying to divert me out of at least one of them in many of your replies to me, Pee-Wee, my slaps must needs be real enough for you -- otherwise, there'd be no need to net.KKKop, since you could just ignore them.

You can't ignore them. You can't ignore me. My slaps hurt, and I own you.

> nothing that happens can unreal <BITCHSLAP>

<reading the missing verb> Obviously not. Otherwise, you could've ignored me ages ago. Reality is in the mind, and is always in the mind.

My slaps hurt, don't they? You know how to make it stop.

> indeed with the mention eris I would thhink you would know that THOUGHT is > real and cases real wrold results

Of course I know thought is real. Virtual slaps are thoughts, too. They're as real as anything else...You certainly can't ignore them, or you would.

> you a fake and flake and of course a <BITCHSLAP>

You are such a dilemma. Maybe you need to go back to boot camp, or something.

I was thinking about putting a 2m/440 beam up for satellite, but I don't want to spend the bucks on an az/el and interface controller.
Instead, I thought about putting them on a mast bent 30 to 45 degrees.
With a beamwidth of 30 deg, it should pick up everything except a direct overhead pass. No cable wrap.

Yes, but then you get slapped. Who wants that? To get slapped, that is, not to see you get slapped. Everyone(tine) wants /that/, of course. You're so easy!

As was pointed out in another thread, you are one of the kooks.
Therefore, I will ignore all future followups by you.

Goodbye, insignificant kook.

That's still a slap. How much stays in (of what you write after the slap) is entirely up to my whim. They're thoughts of slaps, and thoughts are real, as you yourself pointed out. Now, I, Snarky, do hereby claim on Mark Morgan, for his own words on the topic of the reality of thoughts.

Most 12-year-olds don't have my vocabulary, Pee-Wee. Anyway, usenet is for entertaining people and being entertained by them, and as long as I keep getting good reviews, I won't worry about the bad ones. Instead, I'll just keep on entertaining myself with you.

Mmmm, nah, I don't think so. Net.KKKops are all k00ks, primarily because they're impotent, they know they're impotent, and they keep on trying anyway. Nothing you can do to stop the x-poasting, except give up and hope it'll stop, one day. Which it might.

At first I thought it was rosacea, but then I realized that Mark is regularly getting bitchslapped now. It must have him REALLY turned on. Be careful.

I think it means that I'm disrespecting you and your words, k00k, because they're k00ky. You are an impotent net.KKKop, unless you turn into a crazed stalker (if you go real-life -- because there's only one kind of stalker, the crazed kind), in which case you may end up with a Bobo Award.

If you honestly think usenet means more than words on a screen to me (except when it comes to Outer Filth, because they're slime), you're the one that needs help.

Not me. MY federal government dropped the code requirement a while back--and with my blessing. The sky didn't fall (at least not any further than it already had). But having used CW professionally for years, I know both its strengths and its weaknesses. Its main weakness is that not everyone can do it. PSK31 and PACTOR get a bit of an edge on it when there is no large ionospheric phase distortion happening, but require significantly more equipment.

Back in 1976 when I was doing weather observing for a living on Sable Island, we were required to send the results of two balloon soundings and hourly surface observations to Halifax by RTTY. At night that 2mhz RTTY circuit often became impossible. Nor was the AM circuit any good. I frequently got out a key and sent it on CW. It was actually funny when one of the department's high mucky-muck techs came out to the island to fix the problem. I pointed out that verticals were great on 2mhz for a 192 mile path in the daytime but that they got bogged down in DX signals and QRN at night and suggested that he could improve things by giving us dipoles at both ends for night use. I also suggested that a properly designed VHF link would be superior. He laughed at me. Funny thing is, that man's son went out to Sable afterwards and installed a beacon that I could ALWAYS hear in Halifax, running 8 watts on 144mhz.

The thing is, you don't always know what is saving a life. Those weather observations may have made no difference to anything or they may have made a huge difference to how someone flew a 747.

I don't bother with low-IQ clubs myself. Or high-IQ ones for that matter.

I did do some work on the question of human intelligence back in the 60's.
It was interesting. We used factor analysis (now called PCA) and came to the conclusion that it is a six-dimensional vector quantity--to the extent you can measure it at all.

How can we remember something that never happened?

http://www.snopes.com/rumors/north.asp

1. IT WAS THE COMMITTEE COUNSEL, JOHN NIELDS, NOT A SENATOR WHO WAS DOING THE QUESTIONING.

2. THE SECURITY SYSTEM, INSTALLED AT MY HOME, JUST BEFORE I MADE A VERY SECRET TRIP TO TEHRAN, COST, ACCORDING TO THE COMMITTEE, $16K, NOT $60K.

3. THE TERRORIST WHO THREATENED TO KILL ME IN 1986, JUST BEFORE THAT SECRET TRIP TO TEHRAN, WAS NOT USAMA BIN LADEN, IT WAS ABU NIDAL (WHO WORKS FOR THE LIBYANS ï¿½ NOT THE TALIBAN AND NOT IN AFGHANISTAN).

4. I NEVER SAID I WAS AFRAID OF ANYBODY. I DID SAY THAT I WOULD BE GLAD TO MEET ABU NIDAL ON EQUAL TERMS ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD BUT THAT I WAS UNWILLING TO HAVE HIM OR HIS OPERATIVES MEET MY WIFE AND CHILDREN ON HIS TERMS.

5. I DID SAY THAT THE TERRORISTS INTERCEPTED BY THE FBI ON THE WAY TO MY HOUSE IN FEB. 87 TO KILL MY WIFE, CHILDREN AND ME WERE LIBYANS, DISPATCHED FROM THE PEOPLE'S COMMITTEE FOR LIBYAN STUDENTS IN MCLEAN, VIRGINIA.

6. AND I DID SAY THAT THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT HAD MOVED MY FAMILY OUT OF OUR HOME TO A MILITARY BASE (CAMP LEJEUNE, NC) UNTIL THEY COULD DISPATCH MORE THAN 30 AGENTS TO PROTECT MY FAMILY FROM THOSE TERRORISTS (BECAUSE A LIBERAL FEDERAL JUDGE HAD ALLOWED THE LYBIAN ASSASSINS TO POST BOND AND THEY FLED).

7. AND, FYI: THOSE FEDERAL AGENTS REMAINED AT OUR HOME UNTIL I RETIRED FROM THE MARINES AND WAS NO LONGER A "GOVERNMENT OFFICIAL." BY THEN, THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT HAD SPENT MORE THAN $2M PROTECTING THE NORTH FAMILY. THE TERRORISTS SENT TO KILL US WERE NEVER RE-APPREHENDED.

Sure I do. You just can't admit it. That would mean admitting I have power over you, and can make you reply to all my posts to your radio froups.

Not at all. You take it real, and I have to do likewise, which means bringing the cops in, because I have no desire to engage you in the brick'n'mortar world. Since I don't know what kind of real-life k00k you are, I'd have to assume that you're as crazed and dangerous as Woger pretends he is. You haven't done that, so far, so I have no reason to assume anything about you except that you're just another idiotic net.KKKop without a badge.

> just another <BITCHSLAP>

Now, see, you were doing so well, then you had to go use words you don't have the clearance, as a k00k, to be using. If you ever realise that this is a lark, a bit of light entertainment, post about it.

Declaration of Independence of the 13 united States of America: July 4, 1776

When in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and of nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident:

That all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness; that, to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed; that whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shown that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same object, evinces a design to reduce them under absolute despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such government, and to provide new guards for their future security. Such has been the patient sufferance of these colonies; and such is now the necessity which constrains them to alter their former systems of government. The history of the present King of Great Britain is a history of repeated injuries and usurpations, all having in direct object the establishment of an absolute tyranny over these states. To prove this, let facts be submitted to a candid world.

He has forbidden his governors to pass laws of immediate and pressing importance, unless suspended in their operation till his assent should be obtained; and, when so suspended, he has utterly neglected to attend to them.

He has refused to pass other laws for the accommodation of large districts of people, unless those people would relinquish the right of representation in the legislature, a right inestimable to them, and formidable to tyrants only.

He has called together legislative bodies at places unusual uncomfortable, and distant from the depository of their public records, for the sole purpose of fatiguing them into compliance with his measures.

He has dissolved representative houses repeatedly, for opposing, with manly firmness, his invasions on the rights of the people.

He has refused for a long time, after such dissolutions, to cause others to be elected; whereby the legislative powers, incapable of annihilation, have returned to the people at large for their exercise; the state remaining, in the mean time, exposed to all the dangers of invasions from without and convulsions within.

He has endeavored to prevent the population of these states; for that purpose obstructing the laws for naturalization of foreigners; refusing to pass others to encourage their migration hither, and raising the conditions of new appropriations of lands.

He has obstructed the administration of justice, by refusing his assent to laws for establishing judiciary powers.

He has made judges dependent on his will alone, for the tenure of their offices, and the amount and payment of their salaries.

He has erected a multitude of new offices, and sent hither swarms of officers to harass our people and eat out their substance.

He has kept among us, in times of peace, standing armies, without the consent of our legislatures.

He has affected to render the military independent of, and superior to, the civil power.

He has combined with others to subject us to a jurisdiction foreign to our Constitution and unacknowledged by our laws, giving his assent to their acts of pretended legislation:

For quartering large bodies of armed troops among us;

For protecting them, by a mock trial, from punishment for any murders which they should commit on the inhabitants of these states;

For cutting off our trade with all parts of the world;

For imposing taxes on us without our consent;

For depriving us, in many cases, of the benefits of trial by jury;

For transporting us beyond seas, to be tried for pretended offenses;

For abolishing the free system of English laws in a neighboring province, establishing therein an arbitrary government, and enlarging its boundaries, so as to render it at once an example and fit instrument for introducing the same absolute rule into these colonies;

For taking away our charters, abolishing our most valuable laws, and altering fundamentally the forms of our governments;

For suspending our own legislatures, and declaring themselves invested with power to legislate for us in all cases whatsoever.

He has abdicated government here, by declaring us out of his protection and waging war against us.

He has plundered our seas, ravaged our coasts, burned our towns, and destroyed the lives of our people.

He is at this time transporting large armies of foreign mercenaries to complete the works of death, desolation, and tyranny already begun with circumstances of cruelty and perfidy scarcely paralleled in the most barbarous ages, and totally unworthy the head of a civilized nation.

He has constrained our fellow-citizens, taken captive on the high seas, to bear arms against their country, to become the executioners of their friends and brethren, or to fall themselves by their hands.

He has excited domestic insurrection among us, and has endeavored to bring on the inhabitants of our frontiers the merciless Indian savages, whose known rule of warfare is an undistinguished destruction of all ages, sexes, and conditions.

In every stage of these oppressions we have petitioned for redress in the most humble terms; our repeated petitions have been answered only by repeated injury. A prince, whose character is thus marked by every act which may define a tyrant, is unfit to be the ruler of a free people.

Nor have we been wanting in our attentions to our British brethren. We have warned them, from time to time, of attempts by their legislature to extend an unwarrantable jurisdiction over us. We have reminded them of the circumstances of our emigration and settlement here. We have appealed to their native justice and magnanimity; and we have conjured them, by the ties of our common kindred, to disavow these usurpations which would inevitably interrupt our connections and correspondence. They too, have been deaf to the voice of justice and of consanguinity. We must, therefore, acquiesce in the necessity which denounces our separation, and hold them as we hold the rest of mankind, enemies in war, in peace friends.

We, therefore, the representatives of the United States of America, in General Congress assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the world for the rectitude of our intentions, do, in the name and by the authority of the good people of these colonies solemnly publish and declare, That these United Colonies are, and of right ought to be, FREE

AND INDEPENDENT STATES; that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British crown and that all political connection between them and the state of Great Britain is, and ought to be, totally dissolved; and that, as free and independent states, they have full power to levy war, conclude peace, contract alliances, establish commerce, and do all other acts and things which independent states may of right do. And for the support of this declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honor.

Many of them don't even have the word "vocabulary" itself. Your lame is noted and dismissed, while your group snecking is defeated. I am your Well, yeah, there's that.

Declaration of Independence of the 13 united States of America: July 4, 1776

When in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and of nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident:

That all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness; that, to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed; that whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shown that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same object, evinces a design to reduce them under absolute despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such government, and to provide new guards for their future security. Such has been the patient sufferance of these colonies; and such is now the necessity which constrains them to alter their former systems of government. The history of the present King of Great Britain is a history of repeated injuries and usurpations, all having in direct object the establishment of an absolute tyranny over these states. To prove this, let facts be submitted to a candid world.

He has refused his assent to laws, the most wholesome and necessary for the public good.

He has forbidden his governors to pass laws of immediate and pressing importance, unless suspended in their operation till his assent should be obtained; and, when so suspended, he has utterly neglected to attend to them.

He has refused to pass other laws for the accommodation of large districts of people, unless those people would relinquish the right of representation in the legislature, a right inestimable to them, and formidable to tyrants only.

He has called together legislative bodies at places unusual uncomfortable, and distant from the depository of their public records, for the sole purpose of fatiguing them into compliance with his measures.

He has dissolved representative houses repeatedly, for opposing, with manly firmness, his invasions on the rights of the people.

He has refused for a long time, after such dissolutions, to cause others to be elected; whereby the legislative powers, incapable of annihilation, have returned to the people at large for their exercise; the state remaining, in the mean time, exposed to all the dangers of invasions from without and convulsions within.

He has endeavored to prevent the population of these states; for that purpose obstructing the laws for naturalization of foreigners; refusing to pass others to encourage their migration hither, and raising the conditions of new appropriations of lands.

He has obstructed the administration of justice, by refusing his assent to laws for establishing judiciary powers.

He has made judges dependent on his will alone, for the tenure of their offices, and the amount and payment of their salaries.

He has erected a multitude of new offices, and sent hither swarms of officers to harass our people and eat out their substance.

He has kept among us, in times of peace, standing armies, without the consent of our legislatures.

He has affected to render the military independent of, and superior to, the civil power.

He has combined with others to subject us to a jurisdiction foreign to our Constitution and unacknowledged by our laws, giving his assent to their acts of pretended legislation:

For quartering large bodies of armed troops among us;

For protecting them, by a mock trial, from punishment for any murders which they should commit on the inhabitants of these states;

For cutting off our trade with all parts of the world;

For imposing taxes on us without our consent;

For depriving us, in many cases, of the benefits of trial by jury;

For transporting us beyond seas, to be tried for pretended offenses;

For abolishing the free system of English laws in a neighboring province, establishing therein an arbitrary government, and enlarging its boundaries, so as to render it at once an example and fit instrument for introducing the same absolute rule into these colonies;

For taking away our charters, abolishing our most valuable laws, and altering fundamentally the forms of our governments;

For suspending our own legislatures, and declaring themselves invested with power to legislate for us in all cases whatsoever.

He has abdicated government here, by declaring us out of his protection and waging war against us.

He has plundered our seas, ravaged our coasts, burned our towns, and destroyed the lives of our people.

He is at this time transporting large armies of foreign mercenaries to complete the works of death, desolation, and tyranny already begun with circumstances of cruelty and perfidy scarcely paralleled in the most barbarous ages, and totally unworthy the head of a civilized nation.

He has constrained our fellow-citizens, taken captive on the high seas, to bear arms against their country, to become the executioners of their friends and brethren, or to fall themselves by their hands.

He has excited domestic insurrection among us, and has endeavored to bring on the inhabitants of our frontiers the merciless Indian savages, whose known rule of warfare is an undistinguished destruction of all ages, sexes, and conditions.

In every stage of these oppressions we have petitioned for redress in the most humble terms; our repeated petitions have been answered only by repeated injury. A prince, whose character is thus marked by every act which may define a tyrant, is unfit to be the ruler of a free people.

Nor have we been wanting in our attentions to our British brethren. We have warned them, from time to time, of attempts by their legislature to extend an unwarrantable jurisdiction over us. We have reminded them of the circumstances of our emigration and settlement here. We have appealed to their native justice and magnanimity; and we have conjured them, by the ties of our common kindred, to disavow these usurpations which would inevitably interrupt our connections and correspondence. They too, have been deaf to the voice of justice and of consanguinity. We must, therefore, acquiesce in the necessity which denounces our separation, and hold them as we hold the rest of mankind, enemies in war, in peace friends.

We, therefore, the representatives of the United States of America, in General Congress assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the world for the rectitude of our intentions, do, in the name and by the authority of the good people of these colonies solemnly publish and declare, That these United Colonies are, and of right ought to be, FREE AND INDEPENDENT STATES; that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British crown and that all political connection between them and the state of Great Britain is, and ought to be, totally dissolved; and that, as free and independent states, they have full power to levy war, conclude peace, contract alliances, establish commerce, and do all other acts and things which independent states may of right do. Demon Lord of Confusion wrote:

When in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and of nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident:

That all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness; that, to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed; that whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shown that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same object, evinces a design to reduce them under absolute despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such government, and to provide new guards for their future security. Such has been the patient sufferance of these colonies; and such is now the necessity which constrains them to alter their former systems of government. The history of the present King of Great Britain is a history of repeated injuries and usurpations, all having in direct object the establishment of an absolute tyranny over these states. To prove this, let facts be submitted to a candid world.

He has forbidden his governors to pass laws of immediate and pressing importance, unless suspended in their operation till his assent should be obtained; and, when so suspended, he has utterly neglected to attend to them.

He has refused to pass other laws for the accommodation of large districts of people, unless those people would relinquish the right of representation in the legislature, a right inestimable to them, and formidable to tyrants only.

He has called together legislative bodies at places unusual uncomfortable, and distant from the depository of their public records, for the sole purpose of fatiguing them into compliance with his measures.

He has dissolved representative houses repeatedly, for opposing, with manly firmness, his invasions on the rights of the people.

He has refused for a long time, after such dissolutions, to cause others to be elected; whereby the legislative powers, incapable of annihilation, have returned to the people at large for their exercise; the state remaining, in the mean time, exposed to all the dangers of invasions from without and convulsions within.

He has endeavored to prevent the population of these states; for that purpose obstructing the laws for naturalization of foreigners; refusing to pass others to encourage their migration hither, and raising the conditions of new appropriations of lands.

He has obstructed the administration of justice, by refusing his assent to laws for establishing judiciary powers.

He has made judges dependent on his will alone, for the tenure of their offices, and the amount and payment of their salaries.

He has erected a multitude of new offices, and sent hither swarms of officers to harass our people and eat out their substance.

He has kept among us, in times of peace, standing armies, without the consent of our legislatures.

He has affected to render the military independent of, and superior to, the civil power.

He has combined with others to subject us to a jurisdiction foreign to our Constitution and unacknowledged by our laws, giving his assent to their acts of pretended legislation:

For quartering large bodies of armed troops among us;

For protecting them, by a mock trial, from punishment for any murders which they should commit on the inhabitants of these states;

For cutting off our trade with all parts of the world;

For imposing taxes on us without our consent;

For depriving us, in many cases, of the benefits of trial by jury;

For transporting us beyond seas, to be tried for pretended offenses;

For abolishing the free system of English laws in a neighboring province, establishing therein an arbitrary government, and enlarging its boundaries, so as to render it at once an example and fit instrument for introducing the same absolute rule into these colonies;

For taking away our charters, abolishing our most valuable laws, and altering fundamentally the forms of our governments;

For suspending our own legislatures, and declaring themselves invested with power to legislate for us in all cases whatsoever.

He has abdicated government here, by declaring us out of his protection and waging war against us.

He has plundered our seas, ravaged our coasts, burned our towns, and destroyed the lives of our people.

He is at this time transporting large armies of foreign mercenaries to complete the works of death, desolation, and tyranny already begun with circumstances of cruelty and perfidy scarcely paralleled in the most barbarous ages, and totally unworthy the head of a civilized nation.

He has constrained our fellow-citizens, taken captive on the high seas, to bear arms against their country, to become the executioners of their friends and brethren, or to fall themselves by their hands.

He has excited domestic insurrection among us, and has endeavored to bring on the inhabitants of our frontiers the merciless Indian savages, whose known rule of warfare is an undistinguished destruction of all ages, sexes, and conditions.

In every stage of these oppressions we have petitioned for redress in the most humble terms; our repeated petitions have been answered only by repeated injury. A prince, whose character is thus marked by every act which may define a tyrant, is unfit to be the ruler of a free people.

Nor have we been wanting in our attentions to our British brethren. We have warned them, from time to time, of attempts by their legislature to extend an unwarrantable jurisdiction over us. We have reminded them of the circumstances of our emigration and settlement here. We have appealed to their native justice and magnanimity; and we have conjured them, by the ties of our common kindred, to disavow these usurpations which would inevitably interrupt our connections and correspondence. They too, have been deaf to the voice of justice and of consanguinity. We must, therefore, acquiesce in the necessity which denounces our separation, and hold them as we hold the rest of mankind, enemies in war, in peace friends.

We, therefore, the representatives of the United States of America, in General Congress assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the world for the rectitude of our intentions, do, in the name and by the authority of the good people of these colonies solemnly publish and declare, That these United Colonies are, and of right ought to be, FREE

AND INDEPENDENT STATES; that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British crown and that all political connection between them and the state of Great Britain is, and ought to be, totally dissolved; and that, as free and independent states, they have full power to levy war, conclude peace, contract alliances, establish commerce, and do all other acts and things which independent states may of right do. And for the support of this declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honor.

Because I, your Supreme High Overlord, hath decreed it, for one thing!
Also, because you're a k00k, and k00ks don't get to call anyone "kook".
You're a kook because you net.KKKop, and you net.KKKop because you have control issues you can't admit to having. Net.KKKopping is always futile, beyond reporting genuine abusers, and I'm not one of those. Hence, you are doomed to a life of constant frustration and fulmination.

nope pretending you are being adknowledged is sure sign of your progress along the path that produced Roger Wiseman kook supreme
Obviously Mork Morgan has not grasped the irony and blatant intent of Slow Code spamming this group in an attempt to show Mork an example of what he, Mork, has been doing for months. Mork, ever the dolt, looked at the writing on the wall AND COULDN'T READ IT!
Like the congenital idiot he is, Mork decided that he MUST defend his "honor" and reply to each and every post, including adding cross-posted groups.
Mork...hint...Slow Code tried to make a point. One which sailed well over your head. He was spoofing you, dimwit! (Sigh.)

I guess it 'shows to go you' that you can lead Mork to water, but you cannot convince him to drink from the waters of knowledge.
Your turn, Mork. Enlighten us with yet more words (spelled correctly) of your unending examples of wit and wisdom.

Smile. Roger loves you.

Oh, yes. You've already acknowledged that all this (usenet in general) is "real" to you, except when you'd have to admit that you're not in control

LOL! Nah, it's just I don't deal with my online k00ks on an offline basis.
I have no particular desire to see anyone put in prison, or to kill anyone, see them get killed (or even put 'em/see 'em get put in the hospital), or to have anything like those options happen to me. However, I'm not living in fear, either. What happens, happens. If my x-poasting upsets you enough, you'll do whatever you'll do. This is usenet, and if you don't feel like taking it seriously, don't. Ha, for that matter, there's very little I take seriously offline.

He has admitted to being dyslexic in a previous post. He then recanted and said I was not worth the time to check spelling and punctuation.
RRAP produced him, they certainly need to be included in all replies to him and his loyal trollers. Not to mention they are in the next vote, certainly they would like to know the results.

Iran's leadership is behaving delusionally, since Israel clearly exists (as much as any nation can ever be said to "exist"). They'd do as well to deny that /I/ exist. OTOH, your "LORD" cannot be proven to have ever existed, since the gospels were all written long after (or have even less reliable provenance than the four that made it in) the alleged "apostles" allegedly lived, all contemporary historical records which make any mention at all of Him only refer to his followers, _and_ "he" could have been any of three people over a period of several decades (none of whom were born at quite the right time, and none of whom were ever confirmed to have "risen" after death). Your "faith" has meaning only to you. You would do well to keep it to yourself.

Let me explain something to you, Outer Filth: What's on usenet stays on usenet. Actual stalkers are psycho-kooky enough, but anyone who outs personal contact info as a weapon against their enemies is a cowardly k00k. You have no honour, no integrity, and no ethics. K00k, coward,

So fucking what? That doesn't excuse outing it in subject lines, especially not x-posted subject lines. No one has permission to do that to anyone else.

> You are scared of being 'outed' because you are a > pathological abuser of usenet, and people rightly despise you for it.

Oh, wah wah wah. You and your Outer Filth confederates were trying to use AUK to do your dirty work, and it backfired, because outing someone else's personal contact info, no matter how much they've let everyone know about it, is a k00ksign, a sign that someone has effectively lost a flamewar with one's opponent (in your case, apparently, without getting around to the actual "war" first) and has had to resort to craven measures, to go "real life" on someone, to "win". You big baby. You and your buddies are the "pathological abusers of usenet", and /you/ are rightly despised for it.

And BTW, WTF did you think was going to happen? You'd just x-post to AUK, get him nominated for a bunch of awards, and that would be that?
Nominations -- successful ones that lead to awards being won -- are always preceded by weeks or even months (in some cases, years) of cross-posting, because we(tinw) don't automatically accept claims that someone is a k00k based on a few posts. I have very high hopes for you, however, you and your friends, because you've all displayed magnificent density of brain, cowardice, cluelessness, and sheer, stark raving mad k00kiness.

> You're afraid of being reported to the authorities or, better, visited by > a couple of guys with baseball bats.

Oh, please, get over yourself. If I'm "afraid" of anything, it is that something could happen to a certain family member if my location of the moment is revealed, simply because psycho stalker-k00ks don't often care whom they hurt, as long as they get /close/ to the mark. However, there isn't much chance of it happening. Hence, the reason I give a shit is because this is usenet, and what's on usenet is supposed to _stay_ on usenet, dumbfuck.

> Other people don't have this obsessive fear.

A lot of other people are clueless about usenet, too. They don't realise there are genuinely psycho/sociopathic stalkers on the groups, looking for targets of opportunity. Outer Filth like you are nothing more than the scummiest sort of terrorists, because you don't even have the courage to blow yourselves up along with your victims. You risk nothing by being an Outer, nothing besides your reputation. Since you and your buddies are all Goo-Goo Groupers, that ain't saying much. Harrington risked the most, of all three of you -- or do _you_ have the courage to out yourself? -- since he used his legalname in posting.

Incidentally, my legalname is online, somewhere. Not my address, since I moved recently, but my name is. Considering my face is as well, I'm not very anonymous.

> Ward Hardman himself has posted plenty of personal information - nothing > that anyone else added was hidden in any way.

Soooo not the point. He had the right to post his own info, but you and the Outer Filth didn't -- not to post /his/ info. You are always free to post yours. I wonder if you have the courage to x-post yours, too? You could lose "Coward of the Month" to Dave Tholen, if so.

> You're

Kicking your arse? Yep.

> so fucking scared you've built up this whole sick mythology about > different categories of bad dudes who 'out' scum like you.

You are Filth. You call me "scum" because I x-poast? Boo-hoo. Clealy, Sir is not cut out for usenet, if he thinks his group ought to be sheltered from the big bad meowers.

> Meanwhile you are the ugliest pigfucker in the universe.

Really? Awww. I'm so hurt! Here I thought you wuvved me. Where's your pic, so people can compare?

> You are the coward without ethics.

Right, suuuuurrrrrre. CROSS-POASTING IS EVUL! BURN THE CROSS-POASTER!!
Please. Your logic is twisted into a four-dimensional pretzel. You're so hurt and angry about that meanie Ward Hardman and his nasty limericks about someone's head being up their arse that you don't see you're worse than he ever could have dreamt of being.

> You call me a 'newbie' - ha! what an asshole you are.

That's "fuckhead", please. I have a reputation to maintain, you know.

> Those who want to remain anonymous do so.

I guess that would include you. Convenient, that.

> There is absolutely no way you could identify me, not unless you had the > sort of subpoena power that only gets turned on for big-time terrorists.

True, you're just a small-time terrorist. Hell, you even had to have Ward do all the heavy lifting for you, such as getting him to reveal his full name, address, phone number, work email, everything. Then you, "James", and Harrington started posting it in subject lines, and after that you x-poasted it, too. Fact is, you and "James" were x-poasting it for quite awhile before anyone really started paying attention to you. I think everyone knows by now who the real "scum" are.

> That's because I chose to be anonymous.

Gee, I wonder why? Maybe it's because you've been living for nothing but trolling Ward for the past two years and more? Nahhh, couldn't be. That'd be sad, that would.

> Some people don't.

We(tinw) have quite a few prominent kookologists who are very far from anonymous, including the FNVW, the FNVW Emeritus, and a bunch more, though they've largely stayed out of this, to date. My point is, they've all x-poasted more than I have, and they're all still around. I have no fear of being attacked just for x-poasting, no. Sorry, you'll have to peddle your delusions somewhere else.

> Only really stupid dicks like you choose the sort of semi-anonymity > which leaves you in constant fear.

Really, I'm not "afraid" -- it's a rush. Furthermore, I've been no more than semi-anonymous for five or six years, and a lot less than that for nearly four, so this month has been most exciting.

> What a dickless wonder you are 'Snarky' you fat asshole.

Projection noted. My personal contact info (aside from gmail) isn't online. Only my face and legalname are. That's enough for a determined stalker, but I think you're just a small-timer.

George Pickett Memorial Trophy

For that which does the greatest impression of Pickett's Charge in any given month. Winning the Pickett Trophy generally requires the sacrifice of common sense, decency, and reputation to win an unwinnable argument, to reverse an imperceptible slight, or overcome an insurmountable barrier.

==========

For repeatedly making the sort of argument given above, an argument that is totally self-serving and without any sense of decency, that sacrifices any possible reputation he might have with the argument that, "It doesn't MATTER if I outed someone's personal contact info in cross-posted subject lines", I do hereby nominate <wfh_jr@hotmail.com>, of The Outer Filth Trio (Does anyone else think they sound like a c/w band?), for the George Pickett Memorial Trophy.

Seconds?

McClellan was fired for not giving chase to Lee's army at Antietam. I guess 23.000 dead in one day's fighting was enough for him, but not for Lincoln. On the other hand, Lees capture or complete defeat would probably have ended the war much sooner. Lincoln needed a Patton.

Hey now wait a minute, 85% is probably the absolute best he (SC) could do - thus making that the ceiling! So, if you make it 100% - he too wouldn't be

I have a better idea Mike. If you don't like the guy re-selling things he bought at estate sales and other places, simply ignore him.
It's just that simple. Go to another Deli and get your Cornbeef on Rye at another store. Life's too short to worry about ham radio dealers that's fer damm sure! :)

I'll bet copying a message by voice from someone with the cyrillic alphabet would end up a lot better results than copying the same message with cw.

I snipped the original post. It rehashed the lie that , during the Iran-Contra hearings, Oliver North named bin laden as someone who was a threat to his life.

I would like to see Al try to copy Japanese CW.
Let's see, -.-. --.- would be "ni" "ne". Wonder what he would do with .-.-- and --.-. ? :-)

That does...Your "(PROV)" does NOT...

You LIED, trying to hide your NON-EXISTANT military "service" behind a NON-EXISTANT unit, Morkie.

"arogant"....?!?!?

YOU are the one with GDS, Morkie...That's "Google Deficiency Syndrome".

YOU made up this "PROV" unit that not even YOU can Google-up.

And in ALL OF THOSE LINKS you've come up with, NOT A SINGOLE PAGE has even a remote mention of YOU!

And you STILL keep trying to LIE about your "unit" and "IE about having been in the Army.

Just stop, Morgan.

You lie frequently, that's a fact.

You lie POORLY, too!

No you don't.

You try to sandblast every post you can. And if that was n[t bad enough, you crosspost your crap as far and wide as you can.

Sure there was a "LEGIT" purpose.

He was showing you what an idiot you are. Politely. Effectively.

I'm sure that K4YZ will be making note of the multiple death threats you have made. Even direcpc.com should find your actions enough to cancel your account, Kook. You obviously aren't man enough to handle the meowers.

It's a threat.

As perceived by the person addrtessed.

You're commiting a felony.

Stop.

So if you ever decide to perpetrate any of those threats of trying to get "justice" from Civil Air PAtrol or the Tennssee State Board of Nursing, I have a very thorough anthoplogy of Morkisms to show them.

"trouble"?

My only "trouble" with you, Brain, is that you lie, cheat and deceive when the evidence clearly disproves your assertions.

I see you suffer from the same "problem" as Morkie and Lennie...Both of them claim college level educations, but can't seem to express themselves without barroom gutter talk.

Says a lot about you, Brain.

Makes me wonder what you're teaching your kids and those Scouts.

Huge snip.

Ahhhhh, yes....More "knowledge by assimilation" from Lennie's correspondence school educated "shrink" spouse.

Yeah...Right.

As opposed to the gung-ho braggart and insulting boor YOU are,
Lennie...?!?!

> I guess we should have handled robesin differently in the beginning.

Sure.

Having started off by not lying and not being insulting in your own right would have helped, Brain.

> We should have agreed with his bogus assertions and worshipped at his Huh...?!?!

Brain, I sure hope your kids never dig this deep into your behaviour on RRAP...Sure would be a sad way to loose your own kids's trust and confidence.

In case you haven't gotten the picture by now, Morkie, you've been uttering an implicit threat for several days now.

And it's archived.

Continue if you care to, but do so at your peril.

I had looked at some land up near Marquette about 20 years ago - Porcupine Mts, or so the brochure said. Too few jobs up there to make the mortgage payments, and I didn't think there was any way to make the land pay for itself.

Great. An antagonistic dyslexic in a sea of ambiguous text.

I didn't see the dyslexia conversation, but did catch the "not worth the time and effort" post.

Hail Eris! mhm 29x21; TM#5
The God of Odd Statements
Stupidity Takes Its Toll. Please Have Exact Change.
Please remember to vote Outer Filth John Harrington, "James C. Cracked", and "Ward Hardmanure"/"Pete"/<wfh_jr> for KotM, CotM, CNotM, and the Special Ops Cody Memorial Award!
Thread where outing begins: http://tinyurl.com/hojf8
Also vote Ward Hardmanure for Order of the Holey Sockpuppet!
For the August ballot coming Sept. 1st to a newsgroup near you
George Pickett Memorial Award nominee <wfh_jr@hotmail.com> on outing personal contact info in x-poasted subject lines:
Plenty of people post under their real names and do not attempt to hide their contact info. You are scared of being 'outed' because you are a pathological abuser of usenet, and people rightly despise you for it.
You're afraid of being reported to the authorities or, better, visited by a couple of guys with baseball bats. Other people don't have this obsessive fear. Ward Hardman himself has posted plenty of personal information - nothing that anyone else added was hidden in any way.
You're so fucking scared you've built up this whole sick mythology about different categories of bad dudes who 'out' scum like you.

Meanwhile you are the ugliest pigfucker in the universe. You are the coward without ethics. You call me a 'newbie' - ha! what an asshole you are. Those who want to remain anonymous do so. There is absolutely no way you could identify me, not unless you had the sort of subpoena power that only gets turned on for big-time terrorists. That's because I chose to be anonymous. Some people don't. Only really stupid dicks like you choose the sort of semi-anonymity which leaves you in constant fear.

What a dickless wonder you are 'Snarky' you fat asshole.

Thank you.

I don't expect people who don't know me to appreciate all of my

the benefit of the doubt, based on context (bigotry is associated with inbreeding).

That said, if it appears to become a habit, I'll consider adding

I doubt Morkie knows who hi mommie is. Probably raped by Morkie's daddie and left the collateral damage (Morkie) on the front step on her way out of town...No doubt to try and drink-away the horrific memory of having been slimed by Morkie's progentiator.

He'd mess that up, too, then expand his "I Am A Victum" rants.

Rumor has it that Morkie's mommie tried to commit suicide by shooting herself in the heart. She asked someone where the heart was,
and was told it was just under the left breast.

She shot herself in the knee.

Just what we'd expect from Morkie.

He's the product of rape.

He participates in rape.

Now he's profiting from the rape of the wilderness.

Ahhhhhhhhhhhhhhh yes...A principal trait of the Feeble Five...Find someone or something do do your work for you.

Heaven forbid you'd actually do the work yourself...Or FIND the work...Or MAKE the work...

Markie FOUND his niche, however...Made himself look like an idiot then applied for welfare based on his "disability"

Seems to have worked.

More threats and no denying that he is contributing to Global Warming.

KB9RQZ is a putz.

Yep. Instead of letting your lies pass like so many others do, we call you on it.

You can make it stop. At least I hope you can.

More projection. You have been caught in one lie after another. In your mind, because you lie, everbody else lies too. You're nuts.

Yes, that too.

Where did you get your undergraduate degree from?

There are no other words that so completely describe you.

"Dialing...." Hi, hi!

C'mon robesin, pick up that phone. I need a new boat.

Welp, if insulting Len isn't enough, you can always insult Len's wife.

That's the Robesin we know so well.

No, really.

You told us that you failed to make 20 in the service, which is the benchmark for a military "career."

You told us that your first marriage ended in failure.

You told us that you failed to get a 4yr degree and become an RN, even though you had the GI Bill.

So why wouldn't you be called a failure? You've told us that you are.

I go easy because you've had so many personal failures.

I wasn't lying. I was disagreeing with you. I had my own, differing opinions.

You don't allow that. Opinions that differ from yours are "lies."

If you still want "equal time" with my kids, be sure to mention it when you are "Dialing...."

I want a new motor with that new boat. Thanks.

Whadda ya know? Robesin didn't forge any attributes this time. In his haste to be disagreeable, he probably just forgot.

Select cutting 10% of a privately owned forest is raping the wilderness?

My, my. You'll say or do anything to be disagreeable. When did Robesin join ELF?

I do very specialized, high order work. I do the work myself, but being highly specialized, there's not much call for it in the northern timberlands.

But a man nurse could probably soothe the blisters and splinters of the lumberjacks in such remote locations. Perhaps a relocation is in the works?

but you missed that we only have his word that "The opinions of people who MATTER say differently, Lennie." not even names to check out like his bogus military career (using the 20 year stadard it certainly is bogus)

I don't know.

Who's "Robesin"...?!?!

But it IS apparent that you hate Amateur Radio, Brain.

Why?

What lies?

You're the one still holding on to uttered mistruths that you can't or won't answer, Brainnie.

Still waiting on some proof of that "...major role.." utterence of yours, among others.

Nope.

Nope.

Why do you act this way KNOWING that it's archived and can be pulled up for anyone to laugh at on-demand, Brain?

Because they don't like being made fools of.

Unfortuntately they, like you, provide so much material to work with.

And both of them are liars.

Did I say I had one?

One's not necessary to make fools out of the three of you,
Brain...Again because you make it so easy to do.

Sure there are, but they aren't within the vocabularies of the weakminded and foolish, such as you and your compatriots.

For what?

To keep your family's head above the excrement you obviously keep them in at home...?!?!

Sorry, Brainie...They'll have to live with the disappointment that is "Brian P Burke".

Lennie insults her enough.

I "failed"...?!?!

Where did I say I failed at anything, Brain?

And Brain..."20" is not the "benchmark" for a military career.

> You told us that your first marriage ended in failure.

No. It ended in divorce.

> You told us that you failed to get a 4yr degree and become an RN, even > though you had the GI Bill.

Still with more lies, Brain.

Where did I say I failed at anything?

And WHEN did I say I was TRYING to get a BS in ANY discipline?

(BS, of course, being a Feeble Five trademark...Not me...)

> So why wouldn't you be called a failure? You've told us that you are.

No, I've not.

But you seem to ahve great fun making up stuff that I "said", Brain

> I go easy because you've had so many personal failures.

You can "go as hard" as you care to, Brain.

You've gotten a good running start at THIS reign of lies...Why stop...?!?"!

What tantrums?

You mean my steadfast refusal to accept your lies, deceit and irrational behaviour?

That's hardly a tantrum.

going to be insisting others get it, Brain!

So far, it's been lying.

Every one of your "opinions" about what would happen in Amateur Radio vis-a-vis "emcomms" has so far been proven wrong...And in big ways...

> You don't allow that. Opinions that differ from yours are "lies."

No...Lies are intentionally uttered mistruths.

"I like the color blue" is an opinion.

"I prefer shrimp to scallops" is an opinion.

"ARES won't be able to respond to a major disaster" was proven wrong the first time you uttered it and has been proven false over and over.

You've never apologized for it, nor have you acknowledged your error.

Whew...More "Acute Victimitis" as spread by Morkie.

Seems you got a dose.

An opinion on your part.

Too bad THAT was in error too.

Maybe I should just stand by and LET you and the other Feeble Fivers lie, deceive and otherwise malign the Amateur Radio Service....

Haaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaah!

> > Brain, I sure hope your kids never

It's not my "pathos"...It's YOUR lies.

Nope.

CAP does?

Where does CAP express this support, and where did anyone represent themselves to be acting on CAP's behalf in such actions?

The authorities might take interest in robesin's wild accusations that are listed as terrorist organizations, and they have the same ridiculous views as robesins.

You'll probably never have to use CW to save a life, but you should learn it anyway just in case. Ham radio is like a spare tire, when you need it you hope it's not flat. CW is like the air in the tire. I know I don't ever want to hear someone say: "Why couldn't you get help, I though hams were supposed to know morse code."

I'd be both, but the CB'ers would have to agree to:

1: No more automatic renewals. CB'ers must retest and pass all elements required for the Extra class.

2: The passing score for written exams needs to be raised to 85%.

3: Code elements, 13 wpm for General, and 20 wpm for Extra and CB'ers.

4: Make the no-code license one year non-renewable.

Tnx, 73, Keep up the good work. Burp.

Omega One staff:

N90GL, The Re-Todd, Owner/manager. -Doesn't drink beer from a can.

AB8MQ, Woger, Chief Engineew. -Spends alot of time with the janitor.

KB9RQZ, Markie, Program Director. -Wants his own radio show "bE gaY ToDaY"

N0VFP, Llooooydie, Janitor, toilet bowl turd cleaner and Wiener washer.

K4YZ, Steben, Medical Dept and receptionist, Beer enema specialist.

Staff get-togethers and private functions every friday: naked Twister while trying to hold beer enema's. Things get messy, but they don't mind.
Look at Markie squirt, got steben right in the eye. The Re-Todd laughed so hard it came out his nose. Janitor Llooooydie forgot his mop, but he likes Dark beer so that ain't a problem. Engineer Woger's knob is small, so he fiddles with everyone elses knobs.

End Station report.

George Pickett Memorial Award nominee <wfh_jr@hotmail.com> on outing
personal contact info in x-poasted subject lines:
Plenty of people post under their real names and do not attempt to hide

their contact info. You are scared of being 'outed' because you are a pathological abuser of usenet, and people rightly despise you for it. You're afraid of being reported to the authorities or, better, visited by a couple of guys with baseball bats. Other people don't have this obsessive fear. Ward Hardman himself has posted plenty of personal information - nothing that anyone else added was hidden in any way. You're so fucking scared you've built up this whole sick mythology about different categories of bad dudes who 'out' scum like you.

Meanwhile you are the ugliest pigfucker in the universe. You are the coward without ethics. You call me a 'newbie' - ha! what an asshole you are. Those who want to remain anonymous do so. There is absolutely no way you could identify me, not unless you had the sort of subpoena power that only gets turned on for big-time terrorists. That's because I chose to be anonymous. Some people don't. Only really stupid dicks like you choose the sort of semi-anonymity which leaves you in constant fear.

What a dickless wonder you are 'Snarky' you fat asshole.

Quite so! As Teh Secretary to Teh Emperors of MEOW, I am fully empowered to x-poast as widely as my ISP will permit.

You, along with everyone(tine) else, have to abide by TOS of whichever NSP you may use (Goo-Goo, in your case), meaning "permission" is in fact a concept with meaning. _You_ are a usenet abuser, all because you couldn't deal with another troll's limericks.

You, John Harrington, and the former "James C. Cracked" are all Outer Filth -- you were all in on x-poasting to AUK to hang a bunch of awards on Hardman, and you're all net.scum.

I have been assigned psychiatrist to cb'ers and hams.....they're much more alike then they'd like you to think.I have been informed the kook/assoc groups are now subjects of the empire and are now bound by the government of the Great Radio Empire.

As such I have been instructed to offer these mandatory services to the kook/assoc groups.

Your G.R.E. citizenship classes will begin shortly.

Logically, the fantastically unlikely is the one thing you SHOULD be prepared for. According to Murphy, whatever can go wrong, WILL go wrong, and at the least opportune time.

what has one to do with the other

all you can is impotenly type bitchslap

that makes you a kook

Not. Telling me where not to post is effectively the same as telling me where /to/ post. You have no right to claim it as a private group, since it is clearly not moderated.

> I I discuss what is aproprate to post there <BITCHSLAP>

By all accounts, it's a flame group anyway, especially if Wabbit's in it.
Therefore, "anything I bloody well please" would cover the description of "what is appropriate to post there".

Yeah, me thinks you're right. This thing has dragged on long enough. It is getting boring. What IS - IS and until someone - like the FCC changes things - it shall stay as it is. No amount of bitching here will get it done. So, if you want a license, lump it and learn it. If not - its your loss.

no that just is't true it is has been in bad shape aslong as Wismena nd Robeson have been posting I simply highlighted it

OTOH you lack even the cowarage to post your name meaning it is has a high chance of being Wismen
Many people choose to remain anonymous for good reason. You are obviously not intelligent enough to understand the concept.
Perhaps the recent "anon" phone calls to your father-in-law's answering machine didn't ring your thick bell. Had you remained anonymous that would not have happened. Have any of your fellow Kooks sent you magazine subscriptions yet? Sent letters to your neighbors? Or worse?
Even Wiseman "wised" up after being sent a few pizzas. You obviously have not.
No, Mork. Posting with your name and callsign is NOT the signature of a courageous person, but instead the folly of a stupid one.

Hmph! So you /are/ just illiterate. What you said isn't responsive to my

A lot can change in half a year, and someone on the road to k00kdom (as he was then) can become aware that none of this is "serious" (however "real" it may be), unless people get physical. Then it can be either k00ky or simply life-changing, depending on the circumstances.

True. Seeing him use it on my esteemed colleagues was also

I just read the latest QST. In "How's DX?" the author notes that ham radio "used to be" the prime communication from and to Haiti. But now, with cell phones, satellite, etc. it is no longer as important.

This is the real world. Morse is NOT the issue.

Relevance (is that the correct spelling?) is the issue.

Ham radio really WANTS to help in emergencies. This is very commendable. I think, though, we've been sidelined.

We're still there "when all else fails". Morale of those involved remains high, from what I hear / read.

However, in a typical emergency, ham radio is not nearly as primary as it used to be. It's OK. We can still contribute.

Communications have been "universalized"...anyone can use a cell phone. It's natural that communications-specialists see their need waning.

It's OK.

As a hobby, ham radio has a LOT to offer. When I mention to others that I have re-entered ham radio, many people ask "Is that still around?"

Man, of COURSE, it's still around.

If you discuss ham radio with others, do you mention contacting the Space Shuttle? ham radio satellites? weak signal work in VHF/UHF? Sporadic E? Tropospheric Ducting? DX???

How about EME?

You don't have to be doing these things yourself, you just need to let everyone know what the ENTIRE hobby is about.

Morse, data, SSB, FM all have a place.

Ham radio is NOT dying. Hams are. Share our hobby, in ALL its forms, generously with those you know. The rest will take care of itself, for better or worse.

Fred has not posted in some time, yet you still bring it up. I had you killfiled and you continued to talk smack about me every time I posted. Tom as you call him simply doesn't like you and voiced such. Quit trying to play like you are just "defending yourself" as you certainly take the offensive whenever possible. You, and anyone with a brain, knows that as long as you remain in this group, it will always be in turmoil. Your life revolves around the drama you create on Usenet.

No, I mealy meant that the accent No Code Lloyd Davies was displaying was

Change 5/14/00 to 4/2/03 - 13068
Change 4/2/03 to 9/6/04 - -13072
Change 9/6/04 to 6/30/06 - -16974

What a perfect example if ignoring evidence that doesn't back up your argument. There was no change in Morse from 5/14/00 to 4/2/03, yet we GAINED over 13,000 hams, so how is a Morse requirement decreasing the number of hams?

Merely a communication problem, I meant that No Code Lloyd Davies accent was Again your lack of knowledge makes you look the fool. Quit watching your copy of Convoy.

Zounds! Biff! ZAP!!!
That sounds like Mark! He still has his old Cobra 23 channel CB which he runs off a long coax running from his basement to the mag mount antenna on the trunk of his no longer operable, junk car in his father-in-law's back yard. He even has a two amp power supply so he doesn't have to run off the eight "D" cell battery pack he keeps for those northern Michigan hurricanes.
Purty soon though, his daddy-in-law is gonna make him take the coax out of the basement window because the earwigs are crawling in and infesting the house. He told Mark he wants a piece of glass in the winder and wants Mark to remove the duct taped plastic come snow season.
Mark wants to keep the old car and his antenna setup because he says the old klunker has a better ground plane than the discarded refrigerator he used to use. He likes the old fridge, though. It gives him a good ground plane for his mag mount two meter antenna and besides, he done converted the old refrigerator into a storage shed for his clothes that don't fit. He says he likes the old Kelvinator because of the directionality it gives his signals...almost like a beam would. All he has to do is tell his wife to go out back and give the old Kelvinator a shove one way or the other so he can work EME.

So there you are. When Mark ain't spamming Usenet he is on 11 meters giving a "ten-four" and "roger that" and a "I heard that" to his like-minded mental misfits. I heard that, I did. Ten-Four????

Plenty of people post under their real names and do not attempt to hide their contact info. You are scared of being 'outed' because you are a pathological abuser of usenet, and people rightly despise you for it.
You're afraid of being reported to the authorities or, better, visited by a couple of guys with baseball bats. Other people don't have this obsessive fear. Ward Hardman himself has posted plenty of personal information - nothing that anyone else added was hidden in any way.
You're so fucking scared you've built up this whole sick mythology about

coward without ethics. You call me a 'newbie' - ha! what an asshole you

way you could identify me, not unless you had the sort of subpoena power

No need to mention that you are driving Mark Morgan up the proverbial wall.
He is already beside himself in trying to figure out who to spam next.
Your "wit", a very liberal use of the term, has seemingly left Poor Mark picking the dust of your witty retorts from his tooth while he attempts to

You've insisted on posting this crap so many times just about anyone with more than two or three brain cells would be sick of it by now. Why don't you just crawl back under the rock you crawled out from under?

At this point, even a relative moron should get the point that there are a bunch of people that really don't give a damn about CW. That you do is not the point, but your continual posts about it are the point. Therefore, your continual posts lead me to believe you should be seeking mental help. If you don't think you need therapy, how about you get a life and if you are so Pro-CW, why aren't you on the bands right now?

Though I'm an Extra and passed the CW requirements shouldn't make a difference if I choose to operate phone. If the requirements change and new Hams aren't required to take the code test, am I going to be pissed? Hell no, because I took the tests when I did because I wanted to be a productive part of this hobby, not wait for an easier ticket in. I learned it, just as a huge number of others have, but none of us wish to push it like you seem to want to. Even the most die-hard CW fanatic is spending his time on the bands, not on the internet trolling for arguments.

Now, to provide a response to your query: It is extremely unlikely that with all the means we have for contact in the case of an emergency, that CW would be the only way to make contact, particularly if you live in anything near an urban evironment in mainland US. First and foremost, there has to be someone else that will respond to you, and given the things going on with the hobby lately, I doubt that CW will be the safety net you'd like to believe it is.

For myself, I have HF and VHF in both the house and vehicle, and have the VHF radios all programmed with all of the local police and fire frequencies. In a true emergency, I wouldn't lose a moment's time worrying about whether it was legal or not before I keyed up on a public service/fire/police frequency if it meant saving somebody. Would CW help? Not very damn likely, as first I'd have to key up the HF rig, get to someone that could relay, pass a message, hope like hell that they actually did call the proper authority, (and were believed), and so on. You can bet I'll get attention right away if I key up on any of the public service frequencies, and they damn well will respond, if for no other reason than to find me. If that's what it takes, so be it, they can fight it out in court later, and I'd get so much media attention they wouldn't dare push it very far. On the other hand, the likelihood of actually being believed using standard, HF and CW procedures, or getting help in a timely manner to actually save a life is an extremely remote chance...

I rarely filter anyone, but you've definitely earned the "plonk" of being filtered. Say Bye-Bye ! ! !

Rick...point well made, tho a bit wordy.
I happen to be in a position whereby I work in law enforcement and have more that one HT in the home charger, said HTs being on the local PD freqs.
Save a life? CW? Not hardly! That is a moot argument, one with no merit save for the spammers who wish to continue the thread for their own, selfish entertainment.
In an emergency I use one of the HTs. They work even when the cell phone service is out.
In a true emergency, CW is not fast enough. It is archaic. It simply doesn't cut the proverbial mustard.
Keep a Marine battery on hand and keep it charged. One can work any number of radios from that.

'Nuff said.

You're not well-acquainted with the concept of "fun", are you? Then again, the fun's at your expense. K00ks rarely "get" that kind of fun.

you havealways enaged in your homophobic gay bashing attack against e

your killfiling did not oblige me to stop reading or repling to your posts if I choose the NG was nothing nmore than a forum for gaybashing when I wasn't posting there

oh a thread (or two)of On topic stuff survived but it was burried in the gay bashing enaged in by you and others

then wismen trolled in the meow boys

I do happen to know the morse code. At one time I could do 30 wpm.

But the chance that I shall see, in my lifetime, someone drowning in a river when I have with me a battery-operated transmitter, a receiver, an antenna, ground spike, and a morse key is about one in 10,000,000,000.

I would be far more likely to plug in the microphone.

In any case, by the time I had got the gear fixed up and made a suitable contact, the poor victim could have floated out into the Atlantic Ocean.

It would be a good idea to dump the equipment and run downstream along the river bank to the nearest safety belt.

nah you use the ground spike to achor your antenna to use as a safety line the tranmiter might make a decent grip might not and then go in and save the guy

I suppose I could have described you as Kelly/W3RV used to describe folks right here in RRAP; "Dump Huck" (on CW, "Dumb Fuck" on phone).

You had absolutely no problem with that at the time.

But at the end of the day, after all of your accusations of childishness, claims of education's lacking, and talk of gutter talk, you're still a dumbass.

You could eliminate the tests, or you could increase passing levels and I suspect the results would be the same. Fewer and fewer people joining the hobby.

It followed her to school one day
School one day, school one day
It followed her to school one day
Which was against the rules.

It made the children laugh and play,
Laugh and play, laugh and play,
It made the children laugh and play
To see a lamb at school

And so the teacher turned it out,
Turned it out, turned it out,
And so the teacher turned it out,
But still it lingered near

And waited patiently about,
Patiently about, patiently about,
And waited patiently about
Till Mary did appear

"Why does the lamb love Mary so?"
Love Mary so? Love Mary so?
"Why does the lamb love Mary so?"
The eager children cry

"Why, Mary loves the lamb, you know."
Loves the lamb, you know, loves the lamb, you know
"Why, Mary loves the lamb, you know."
The teacher did reply

There are MANY reasons why ham may not be as popular. NO ONE reason is THE reason. Code sure isn't it. It didn't stop the many who desired a license from persuing it. If you want to do it - you will - simple as that. EFFORT is the name of the game!

Many a fine CBer has moved up to Ham - and improved the hobby. CODE didn't keep the scum of the bands from operating there ON CB OR now in the Ham bands. SO - CODE IS NOT THE REASON.

With the way you've been talking - you (SC) couldn't even do 85%. SO, you'd be cutting yourself out.

I've said it before, I'll say it again - there are MANY things in life you MUST learn to get by, some by pure need or desire. You "LEARNED" to drive, had to study the rules of the road. You "LEARNED" how to do many other things - and I'm damned sure "studied" things in school - maybe even college or post high school to get to where you wanted to be - maybe took an exam for a job promotion. HAM is just one more thing to "learn". For Christs sakes, if you had EVERYTHING handed to you - it wouldn't be worth having. To JUST have a "DRIVER'S LICENSE" "GIVEN" to you - would produce havoc on our roads. To JUST GIVE AWAY "PILOTS LICENSES - would be devastating to many when they come crashing down. To JUST "GIVE" Radio Licenses away - regardless class or whatever - would produce havoc on the air waves. SOMEWHERE - there HAS to be SOME control.

ANYONE not willing to work for something - is PURE LAZY..... NO other way to put it. I suppose those of you whining and bitching - never had the pleasure of "satisfaction" KNOWING you "passed" a test by KNOWING the material - NOT having it given to you.

THIS isn't ALL JUST about code anymore - our whole freaking nation is dumbing down and that is SAD. AND it is getting to be a "lawless" society where no one cares anymore - they do as they damned well please. Be it on the telephone, radio, highway, waterways, in the air..... where ever - doing whatever - they're not supposed to be doing. Step on your neighbors rights but damned if they're to step on yours. That logic creates more troubles.

This sort of thread will continue as long as there are whiners who don't want to EARN a privelage - they want it "handed" to them. No wonder this country and/or world is so screwed up.

The point I was trying to make is that the amateur radio hobby matured about 3 decades ago. It's membership is aging rapidly and the number of active participants is declining. As the baby boomer generation dies off at an increasing rate the amateur radio hobby will continue to fade away. Fiddling with the test requirements isn't going to magically entice younger blood away from the many other license-free ways of communicating. I would venture to say that you could open the ham bands completely CB style and not get a big jump in membership. There are just too many other interesting, easy to use ways of communicating that that younger people are accustomed to using. I wish it were otherwise.

Making the ham radio test more of a challenge as you suggest misses the point completely. The point is that there will be a diminishing number of people with any interest becoming a ham, no matter what the requirements are.

BULL SHIT? TRY a bit of effort in some of your spelling dude - your website sucks with misspelled words as do most of your posts.

EFFORT IS required in most anything in life - worth having. For some jack off who thinks we NEEDED this war - then why don't you MAKE AN EFFORT TO HELP FIGHT IT. Maybe if we're lucky, you'll be wiped out instead of a soldier who didn't need to be there.

Don't even bother replying jack off. You're barred from my screen.

You "could" be and may very well be right in that regard as to the numbers increasing or not if the bands were completely opened. But since most of this crap evolved around CODE and then the "learning" ability of "exam" material - those issues are not the <complete> problem. As I said, if you want to "learn" anything, effort is the key. All through our lives, we all have to LEARN "something" to make us who/what we are in life. You learn to do your job, even if it isn't from a text book. But, you have to admit - except for sweeping floors, pumping gas, washing windows, etc..... it DOES take "effort" to learn the tasks. Once you master them - then usually it is a piece of cake. "Learning" should never end for anyone - until their number is up here on earth.

In code, you learn ._ is "A". In driving - you learn to put your left turn signal on and then turn the wheel left - to make a left turn in your vehicle. In a factory or on a construction job - you learn hand signals to instruct a crane-man at a job site. Whatever it is - you learn "something" to get you by in life - be it a job, hobby or whatever. In most cases (except code) - NOT learning - could get you or others injured or killed.

I DOUBT - anyone jumped in a car the first day and went and passed their drivers exam - it took EFFORT to learn to drive (safely). I DOUBT anyone - jumped in a plane and passed their pilots test the first time in the plane - it took EFFORT. Even to pass a physical ability test for some jobs - TAKES EFFORT. Any SOLDIER or PRO or even high school/college athlete who has excelled - will tell you that.

To the screwball who said BULL SHIT to "effort" - he claims to be an EME user on his website. I'm DAMNED sure he didn't just wake up one day and decide to try EME - and be eh - fair(?) at it! SOMEWHERE along the line - it took EFFORT to acquire the knowledge, license and materials to do so. Too bad he doesn't make some "effort" to "spell" properly - MOST of his bull shit has been misspelled so poorly, he comes across as a tard. No wonder he gets picked on..... Misspelled words, "NEEDED" wars, etc..... SHEESH. I misspell a word here and there once in a while in error - as do many others. BUT there are SOME who seem to KILL IT when it comes to spelling. They never heard of "spell check"? Can't even make effort to use THAT to make them look a bit brighter.

It doesn't matter how easy or hard the tests are - Code or NO Code - the point here in this thread and others similar is - it seems some want it "handed" to them and all I'm saying is EFFORT will help you get it and you'll be rewarded - your achievement - be it a license, an upgrade in license OR a job promotion with subsequent pay raise or position. So what if you never use the code again to save a life or just to chat on the air - who cares? To pass the muster for some promotions in the service, you have to prove physical ability, and some of those things needed to be done - you may never have to make use of again. Tell your senior officer you're not going to do it and see what you hear in return.....

IF YOU WANT IT BAD ENOUGH - YOU"LL DO IT. Of course - weinie boy who thinks effort is bull shit and believes we NEEDED wars - wouldn't have a clue. So the quiestion is now - did he cheat on his exam and had his license handed to him OR have the equipment donated to not have to make the EFFORT to acquire it all?

Opening up the bands won't be the answer to the "population" of the bands. IF I were God, had a Crystal Ball, I might be able to give the "exact" answer. I've "never" claimed to have it nor do I now. All I can say, is we know where we're headed and it will be interesting in say 5 years or so - to see how we do indeed end up. Changes "could" come about to revive it, open the bands up OR shut them down. Right now, they are somewhat protected by Vongress, but the Congress members are usually able to be bought out by special interest groups - so - NEVER SAY NEVER..... we could be sold out next year if enough of them get their heads together. Then - all of these threads will be moot points. Hell, we may end up paying to type/read this - over and above our ISP payment. There WAS a move to do so..... Nothing to say it couldn't happen if someone tries it again.

Hi Al -

Although it may be true I'm not arguing that the current Morse requirement decreases the number of hams. However, two elements of the OP's proposal were:

3: Code elements should be 13 wpm for General, and 20 wpm for Extra.
4: Make the no-code license one year non-renewable

My point was that increasing the code requirements beyond those in place as of 2003 would likely reduce the already declining rate of enrollment of new hams.

Ok, what if you were stranded on a desert island, and had to use code to save someone's life?
Could you use the coconuts to build a radio in order to send said code?
And if you could build the radio out of coconuts, why not just build one
with a mic and speak
the miracle of life into being?

Ok, what if you were stranded on a desert island, and had to use code to save someone's life?
Could you use the coconuts to build a radio in order to send said code?
And if you could build the radio out of coconuts, why not just build one
with a mic and speak
the miracle of life into being?

And ever so slowly we creep up on the actual point....

pick a freq, pick a mode, pick a language, pick a moment in time.
Nothing is perfect and CW or no CW, it's about circumstance, not code.
Then again, you can back it up one more and acknowledge the foolishness of the whole CW argument.
As it stands, hams are so crazy they somehow think they are the only hope for mankind.
I pray that farce never becomes fact!

Everything has it's place.
Ham radio is a novelty. CW is a novelty within the same. That's all....
As long as there are 40wpm ops out there that can't program a radio, it's just a bunch of ding-dongs arguing amongst each other, looking like a bunch of ding-dongs.
And it goes both ways.... no reason to ditch CW but this "my tapper is faster than your tapper" stupidity is just phallic and pathetic. Which finally brings us to the overall problem...
As usual, the last word in any hammy hashing is the same.
Control freaks needing to feel in control, and the subject matters not.
That's why these goofy threads carry on forever.

Well... no, I got the point just fine. I can't imagine being surrounded by Spanish-speaking people needing a code interp, or being on a CW freq anyway, while some emergency happens to be taking place. And yeah, I'm elite like that... I have a gift for gab... just like a monkey can be trained to tap out a code of communication, I can parrot what I hear. It [or 50wpm CW] isn't intelligence in any way, it's just a stupid circus trick. Once again..... this wasn't or isn't the issue anyway... No one said there were no pros to the mode, just that the whole "save a life" thing is laughable. This argument jumps from an issue of speed, then to the generation gap, then to simple name-calling banter. It's quite humorous and totally stupid. Kudos to the OP troll! LOL guess what? It'll take me hours to locate a German to translate it. SO..... shot down yet again, a big burning ball of fire falling from the sky beepin' SOS till ya hit the water right next to a burning boat...

Let's get back on point please. The question was if you had to use CW to save a life, would that person die?
The answer is simple. If the person in question knows CW, then no, and if the person in question doesn't know CW, then yes.
How hard is that? Why can't everyone keep to the issue?

The problem with young people anymore is that they don't communicate face to face.. if it's not on the phone, or some instant messenger, they don't communicate at all.

Ok.... you just ruined your whole argument.... you're now comparing commercial and professional ops to amateur ops.
What is your point? The issue here is hobby radio operated by hobbyists.

The dark question has yet to be asked anyway... "Should amateur radio ops be held to professional standards?"
Or maybe it's something about saving a life with CW... it's kinda muddy at this point....

Excuse me? If you are going to operate on a worldwide basis, you should be well versed on world languages so you don't have that problem. Ask any hi-speed op and they should agree.
The funny part being most all foreign ops know English and most US natives are small appliance bulbs in a world of Xenon driving lights.

LOL.... I assume you think you've made a point at any time?

It's a simple yes or no question....
If you had to use CW to save someone's life, would that person die?
Stay on point please.

Sheesh, why would we be in the CW band in the first place, and then why taking down code or voice in a foreign language we don't understand?
That Mister, must be the epitome of ham....

You know, there are children starving in South America, Babies being slaughtered at birth in India, and you think some stupid ham op parked in a chair in poshville USA has a clue about anything that really matters?
Oh! I know CW, I know CW! I passed a message once and saved the world! And for the next 30 years I bumbled around in my back yard drinking beer, eating donuts and doing nothing for anyone except my own self.

Arrogant Americans lost in space.
That's thick.

Let's get with it people.... are we have a commercial radio argument or an

If commercial then we all agree, argument is moot.

I thought it was illegal to change modes during the EMF stage... ??
You should be able to remodulate your carrier to offset the gravimetric effect on the signal as it nears subspace. I scavenged a modulator wheel from an electronic piano and work it with the left hand whilst straight-keying with my right, as obviously this can't be done with a keyer or bug of any kind.
Manual manipulation of each character's component time/phase is a must to get a synch.

Hey, if you had to use CW to make chicken salad for a starving Latvian, would that person starve to death?

ARRL threw principle out the window when they caved in to the demands of the Lambda Amateur Radio Club (LARC). It was a sad day for me indeed when I opened my beloved QST magazine and there on the pages were photos of queers on a Tropical DXpedition, and in living color no less. The ARRL wanted us to embrace a sick perverted lifestyle and be one big happy family. To me, it was the spark that signaled the death of a once proud organization, and it turned liberal.

Now the queers have all but taken over, they're like the military wing of the Democratic party, and always in your face. It's not even safe to take your kids to Easter egg hunts anymore. I know you're all going to disagree with me, but a man touching and sucking on another man's cock and screwing his ass just ain't right. The ARRL promoted this, now look what happened to our radio groups now that Mark, Roger, and Lloyd have come out of the closet.

Okay.

I'll put you down as a No for CW. Thanks for helping with the survey.

OK.... taking a poll....

By replying only in CW, either text dit-dah, or periods and hyphens......

How many people actually read that, and what is your analysis of the report?

I am running a script to see how long it takes you to click reply, enter your response, then click send. Your effective scaled-score code speed will be calculated from those particular clicks, along with the character count of the message. You will be made fun of, according to your CW speed. Anyone less than 24wpm will be required to take the new FCC remedial code speed
Enzyte Exam for phallic phlops.

Gentlemen, gud luck.

Huh? You mean there is something besides CW?? Man, don't you know CW saves lives?!?!?

Listen, Weak signals are for CW work on HF while boats are burning. Contacting the space shuttle is just pointless unless you're correcting their keplerian elements for the return flight path or asking if they really drink Tang, Sporadic E [aka EMF bombing] is really pissing off the Condensation Entities that periodically enter the atmosphere to scan for intelligent life, and tropospheric ducting is a lie. I happen to have the control codes to several am-sats and I randomly change the freqs all the time, and you suckers fall for it without fail....
And DX? Hello....? Internet....?

Welp, when the AF took the airplanes away from the Army in 1947...

...this guy named Sikorsky came along and sold them some helicopters.
Anyway, they were a lot of fun and the idea really caught on. Now the marines have them, too. Robesin says he worked on helicopters in some capacity, and got hisself involved in 7 hostile actions.

The aluminum skin of a C130 is sort of hard to see through. The only craft that I ever saw with a glass underbelly was a tour boat in Florida.

But you can rest assured that neither robesin nor the CAP was flying that C130.

No BobbyO, there is a BIG difference their on FM and I'm on Shortwave, most of the real shortwave listeners know that there is a difference. I would also BTW point it out to the Judge that the individuals who complainted to omega radio are the same individuals who claimed a week before I was in violation of a trademark called Omega who makes PDA Software, and the same individuals who claimed I was violating federal law with my low power transmissions, without any hard evidence...but hey like I tell all these other nut jobs who jack off to this type of harassment to go for it if you think you have something, but you better make sure you have something

I just cast my vote, when you win I will rub your nose in it as I would a dog that pooped on my carpet, then I will killfile you until such time that I see you are a nominee for another award. I will then do my duty as an AUK kOOkologist and slap you around some more. It is my goal that you receive the Golden Killfile at some point and you will no longer exist.

Why would this group need to be moderated? There is very little spam in here and contrary to delusional people, there are few off topic posts here. I think anyone attempting to moderate this group would do it for purely control freak issues and personal problems. It would probably kill the group and the usual crowd probably won't like it and they would start up an unmoderated newsgroup for ba.broadcasting. I find that a better tool than moderating is the killfile or block sender function.

Actually, Morkie, if you'll draw a line on a map between your QTH and AB8MQ, it's considerably more than 200 miles.

Furthermore, I just plain old don't believe you have the resources, technical or skills, to allow ANY person to hear a radio signal from KB9RQZ.

I may give you the benefit of the doubt that the local repeater get's your audio spam, but only because it takes no more skill to get on a repeater than it does Channel 19 for a Smokey Report. I figure you to be at least as technically competent as someone who can read the instructions on a Radio Shack CB...But not by much...

20 is SLOW. But the only way to learn 35 or 40 is to learn 10, 15, 20 etc.
And the best way to do that is get on the bands and DO it instead of making rude noises at the people who CAN.

Phonetics on SSB are usually a lot slower than 20wpm, though.

We have three tests her in Canada now. The Basic gets you on the air.
If you get an 80% or higher score you get HF privileges with that.
You're limited in power and must use commercially built, approved gear.

If you want to roll your own gear or put up a repeater or something, then write the Advanced. You'll get full HF privileges.

If you want to be known as morse proficient, then take the code test.
That will get you on HF even if you just PASSED your Basic. But if you already have the Advanced, then it will get you a nic shiny morse endorsement and a sense of accomplishment.

And no, the sky didn't fall any further than it already did when we dropped the code requirement for Basic and made it VHF only.

Well, it certainly happened to me. Of course I can't say whether it actually SAVED any lives. Because maybe they would have been saved anyway, though it sure helped that I could figure out what was wrong.

But you see, a lot of ships used CW at that time.

50wpm is relatively easy. Now back in 1975 when I was out on Sable Island, I broke in on some guys on 80m with my nice new computer, programmed to send morse from the terminal keyboard (but still requiring a human ear to hear). They were going 65 and wanted to know if I could "copy the morse code." One kid there used to QSO me and he'd start out at 60 and ramp up. He was 13.

Well, to be honest, I leave my keyer set at 25wpm. That's a good steady speed for general working. I'm only likely to speed it up if I'm in a contest or something.

Where...?!?!

Provide us with a scan of SOME official statement by CAP that "supports" anyone's comments in this forum, Morkie.

> > Where does CAP express this support, and where did anyone represent > > themselves to be acting on CAP's behalf in such actions?
>
> by refusing to take action against a CAP officer that fails to grant > military coutestsy to veterans of the real armed forces

YOU are NOT due any military courtesy, Mork. First and foremeost, you're NOT a veteran and you're certainly NOT an officer.

Only members of the Armed Forces (and thier Guard and Reserve components), the Commander-in-Chief, the Service Secretaries, awardees of the Congressional Medal of Honor, Veterans receiving Final Honors, uncased Colors of the United States and Allied nations and foreign heads-of-state are DUE military courtesies. Those courtesies MAY be extended to certain other dignitaries or family members of deceased servicemembers or dignitaries on a case-by-case basis.

Retirees are granted those same courtesies when/where practical.
You, having never met any of those criteria, get squat. And even if you were the "NCO" you claimed to have been, you would STILL be junior to me, enlisted or otherwise.

Even USAF and USCG Auxiliary members are not "due" military courtesies, except by thier own memberships. Same is rendered at the discretion of the senior Armed Forces servicemember present, although Auxiliary members will always render them to uniformed officers.
Again, that leaves YOU out!

No one here has posted AS a CAP member or in an "official" capacity. Your continued assault on CAP >>>IS<<< stalking.

Despite having been asked this question over and over for months now, you still have yet to provide any evidence that CAP is somehow responsible for comments made by private citizens.

No one in this forum has posted ANYthing in this forum in an "official" capacity for ANY organization. So why do you insist on stalking that organization?

Since you insist on posting much of your deceit and rhetoric via an AMSAT alias, maybe we should start bombarding AMSAT with demands to "discipline" you...?!?!?

I can't say the people that he sent copies of e-mails to in CAP would consider him a "laughing stock", but they sure got a laugh when I showed them copies of some of Morkie's more memorable posts...ie: "I am A Colonel"..., etc etc etc...

Ahhhhhhhhhhhhhh....No...She does NOT have degrees in the "medical"
arena...She's a correspondence school psych graduate.

And if she can't exert some control over his behaviour on line (if she indeed knows what he does, which I SERIOUSLY doubt), then I can only doubt that she was ever remotely credible as a shrink.

It never does, but he just can't get over the fact that he's as

Of course there is always the possibility that Mark is quite in the dark as to his exact geographical location. To Mark, a Big Night Out consists of letting his wife drive him to Wal-Mart where he works as a part time door greeter.

Do you think he's qualified?

His Royal Putziness probably faces the wrong way and waves at the shop lifters on thier way out. When the "Please Step Back Inside" alarm goes off, he says "Here, let me turn that pesky thing off...."

Maybe that's how he got his FRS radios home...?!?!

Steve, K4YZ

He doesn't confront shoplifters. His Little Rascal electric chair is not fast enough to pursue anything other than an errant, slowly rolling donut as it rolls in lazy circles. Of course he gets to keep the donut...part of the benefit package.
FRS radios? You don't suppose that is what he is trying to work EME with, do ya?

After all these months of reading the mindless posts authored by "get help" Mark, I have yet to see anybody respond to him with, "Wow, Mark. That was a well-written and very intelligent post."
I guess it is always a possibility, but only if Elmer Fudd or Skooby Doo should happen to wander by.
Unfortunately for Mark, and funny for us, he has unwittingly become the laughingstock of Usenet. His simple mind has yet to realize this, but maybe some day?

You have not been in the Army.

And "CAP" entered the "discussion" because you thought you could

Excuse me? Was this a convo in RSPW? Yes, I think it was. Was it being x-poasted into AUK? Yes, I think it was. You understand that means any kookologist who reads it may do as he or she pleases with it (as so commanded by Their Majesties, Teh Emperors of MEOW, Fluffy & The 2-Belo, many years ago), whereas k00ks are condemned to accept it? Know, then, that Mark "an old freind" Morgan is up for a Golden Killfile this Friday, on the basis of such lames as above (as well as "cease and desist", with various spellings, and "gte help" -- he's trying to bore us out of his group (rrap), with a remarkable lack of success, to date, given his "admirably" boring efforts).

IOW, if you don't want our(tino) attention, don't fucking well try to get it. He did, and now he's sorry.

Ahhhhhhhhhhhhhh....No...She does NOT have degrees in the "medical"
arena...She's a correspondence school psych graduate.

And if she can't exert some control over his behaviour on line (if she indeed knows what he does, which I SERIOUSLY doubt), then I can only doubt that she was ever remotely credible as a shrink.

Well, it was, after all, Lennie's spin. For whatever that was worth. Len ruined his attempts at credibility when Stagger Lee "outed" Len for posting over the call sign of an Amateur operator who Len apparently disliked.
Stagger even outed/traced Lennie's IP address to the military base Len was then employed at.
Len is a blowgut. Simple as that. Pay him no heed.

I am neither a liar, nor discussing my pants, Morkie.

As usual, though, you ARE in BOTH cases...

Why do you insist on threatening women with arson, Morkie?

It is the only way he can strike back at his intellectually superior female protagonists. In "real life" Mork leads the life of a submissive, milquetoast male who has to abide by the orders of his bread-winner wife. To flaunt her authority is simply not done, and he harbors a deep resentment that can only be taken out on Usenet folks. Usenet is Mark's fantasy...his 'world', if you will. It is the only place he has an identity.

Come about 06:30 Eastern the lumbering idiot will fall out of bed (or be booted..?!?!) and slither into his Captain Kirk seat for yet another hard day at Newsgroup Spamming.

Morkie will crosspost to irrelevent NG's, avoid answering anything that will dispell his rants (which is just about everything else posted here...), lie about his marital status and make up yet more bogus "QSO's" for his EME efforts...

Or maybe he will create yet another "blog" with which to dispense his deceit and dishonor from...?!?!

It's still three more days till the welfare checks are distributed...Morkie has nothing but time and a couple of cases of "Olympia Gold" to kill, so sit back and watch the Morkie hit the fan! ! ! ! ! ! !

You're probably right on the spelling....Although I did watch a neat piece about the construction of the bridge in the mid-50's...WHEW!

Anyway, I doubt Morkie could find it, and even then he couldn't

It's got nothing to do with your perversion, Morkie.

Why would I?

I know several "bi" people. Most of them are OK enough...but then they don't act like you do, either

You're not happy, Mork. It's obvious. You're a loser on so many levels as your campaign to smear anyone and everyone here attests.

> >and why would a Nurse Encourage suicide?

I wasn't suggesting it as a Nurse, Morkie.

I was asking your to do it as a commitment to a cleaner enviroment.

Obviously the enviroment is not one of your concerns.

OK, Ok, but I have to ask. What the heck is "impy"? I remember years ago when we kids would watch TV on the old black and white tube and watch as Walter Brennan played the part of a guy who was "impy". Or was that 'gimpy'?
Then along came Gunsmoke with Matt Arness and his "impy" sidekick, Chester.
Oh, wait. Maybe Chester (Dennis Weaver) was not "impy" but gimpy. Perhaps Mork could elucidate when his overworked door-greeter schedule permits?
And if Mark doesn't mind, perhaps he can also explain that a "kok" is? Is that an animal native to his northern Michigan area? A cooking utensil?
Funny, but try as I did I couldn't find a definition for "kok" anywhere on line, and my Websters has no such entry, either.
This is a mystery that only Mork Morgan can explain, if you can decipher what he says.

Hey Mork...What was the purpose of that (threadjacking from a

There was nothing about you OR Amateur Radio in the whole piece.

It was posted by a CAP member to a CAP NG about CAP issues.
